

SHIPS COLLIDE, 100 DROWN EXPLOSION TRAPS MINERS

ONLY ONE PERSON SURVIVES DISASTER; WEATHER TOO ROUGH TO LAUNCH LIFE BOATS

London, Nov. 4.—In one of the worst gales ever known in the Irish Sea the British steamer Connemara with passengers and a cargo of cattle from Greenore, Ireland, for Holyhead, Wales, collided last night just outside the Curlewford Bar with the British steamship Retriever, laden with coal. Both vessels sank immediately with an estimated loss of life of about 100.

Of the fifty passengers and crew of 31 aboard the Connemara there is only one survivor. It is virtually certain there were no Americans on board. The entire crew of the Retriever was lost. Many bodies are being washed ashore on the Irish coast. Numbers of cattle also are being washed up, some alive.

The weather was so rough that it would have been impossible to launch any boats, even had time permitted.

The Connemara, 1,106 tons gross and 272 feet long, was built in Dumbarton in 1896. The Retriever was 190 feet long, of 674 tons gross and was built in Guole, England, in 1909. She was owned by the West Coast of America Telegraph Company, of London. A steamer service is maintained by the London and Northwestern Railway between Holyhead, Wales and Greenore, Ireland, a distance of about 80 miles across the Irish Sea.

5,077 TON STEAMER AFIRE
London, Nov. 4.—A Lloyd's despatch from Falmouth reports the British steamer Ponus, 5,077 tons gross, ashore and on fire in Falmouth Bay.

London, Nov. 4.—The Wilson liner Spero, of 1,132 tons gross, has been sunk, according to a despatch from Hull to the Daily Mail.

LOANS OVER TWO BILLION

New York, Nov. 4.—The completion of negotiations with the Russian government for a $50,000,000 five year 5½ per cent loan by a banking syndicate headed by The National City Company, which is controlled by the National City Bank, brings the total borrowings here of foreign countries with the exception of South America to more than $2,000,000,000.

GENERAL PROBE IS ORDERED

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 4.—Commissioner McChord just before adjournment of the morning session of the informal inquiry into the car shortage on the railroads of the country, announced the receipt of a telegram from the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington saying that the commission was entering an order for a general investigation into the supply, exchange, interchange and return of freight cars, together with all the regulations and practices relating thereto. The initial hearing is set for Wednesday at Louisville before Commissioner McChord.

CLAIMS FOUR STATES WILL VOTE DRY

Westerville, O., Nov. 4. Predictions that Michigan, South Dakota, Nebraska and Montana will vote dry at Tuesday's election were made here today at the national headquarters of the Anti-Saloon League by Wayne B. Wheeler, attorney for the league. "Montana will go dry two to one," said the statement, which continues that in South Dakota the dry vote will be nearly as large. "Michigan and Nebraska are certain to go dry," said the statement, "although by narrower margins than South Dakota and Montana."

Mr. Wheeler's statement also predicts that the dry representation in congress will be materially strengthened by the election of new congressmen.

NATIONAL CAMPAIGN WILL BE VIRTUALLY CLOSED TONIGHT ITALIANS CONTINUE VICTORIOUS DRIVE

London, Nov. 4.—In the first two days of the new Italian offensive the Austrians lost 39,000 men, according to a despatch to the wireless press. The losses are said to have been as follows:

Killed, 10,000; wounded, 20,000; taken prisoner, 8,000.

Fine weather favors the Italian advance which continued yesterday over a more extended area and was increasingly violent. The despatch says the Austrian General Bordevich has asked for reinforcements, having been compelled to withdraw three divisions. Prisoners are reported to have said that Austrian battalions now do not contain more than 600 men, one-half of whom are from the new classes. The arrival on the battle front is reported of Kaiserjäger regiments from the Tyrol and Hungarians from the Rumanian front.

The despatch quotes a telegram, said to have been received at Rome from an Austrian source, saying Vienna is alarmed by the news from the Italian front, fearing developments of a grave nature.

Berlin, Nov. 4.—(By wireless to Sayville)—Attacks on German positions on the Somme front yesterday northwest of Courcellette and in the Guedecourt-Les-Bœufs sector were repulsed, the war office announced today.

Portions of the Russians' main position on the Narayuvka river, southeast of Lemberg, were taken by storm yesterday by Austro-German troops.

Rosca Heights, southeast of Altschanz on the Hungarian-Rumanian front, has been occupied by the Rumanians the war office announced. In the region of Predal, Austro-German forces recaptured a position from the Rumanians.

Germans Repulsed

London, Nov. 4.—Strong German forces last night entered the British trenches near Guinchy, seven miles east of Bethune, says the British official statement issued today, but the invaders were immediately expelled. The Germans yesterday launched a counter-attack east of Guedecourt, the statement adds, but they suffered very heavy losses in proportion to their strength.

Germans Meet

Stubborn Resistance
London, Nov. 4.—Violent fighting continues to mark the Austro-German attempts to open a way to the plains of Rumania south of Kronstadt and Hermannstadt and toward Bucharest. The stiff defense of the Rumanians is yielding slowly to the blows of Austro-German artillery and infantry about Predal and Berlin announces further progress south of the border for them.

East of Predal the Rumanians advancing in the Buzeu valley have driven the invaders back over the frontier in the region of Table Butzi. They also have taken Mount Sirind and Taturumio along the Transylvanian border southeast of Kronstadt. South of Hermannstadt in the region of Rothenthurm Pass the Austro-Germans have extended their lines and captured an additional 350 prisoners. West of Rothenthurm and in the Prahova valley the Rumanians are holding their ground.

On the eastern front fighting has taken place east of Kovel, in Volhynia and southeast of Lemberg in Galicia. Berlin announces the repulse of seven Russian attacks.

LITTLE HOPE HELD OUT FOR RESCUE OF IMPRISONED MEN

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 4.—Eighteen negroes and nine white men entombed in the Bessie mines of the Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron Company, 20 miles west of here are believed to have lost their lives early today by an explosion, said to have been caused by gas. Two bodies of unidentified negroes have been brought to the surface. Rescue crews from government and state mine bureaus are at work trying to reach the men. Two white men and three negroes escaped injury by working their way through the debris which the blast caused in the opening. The explosion occurred below the eighth level of the mine and was of such a force that the mouth was considerably damaged and a number of cars were wrecked on the mine tipples.

THE GERMAN PRESS SHOWS INTEREST IN AMERICAN ELECTION

Berlin, Nov. 3. (Via London).—The German press shows considerable interest in the approaching American election, printing all available news arriving by way of Holland or reprinting summaries of the situation from English newspapers. The Catholic Organ (The Katholische Volkszeitung, today devoted a lengthy editorial to the subject but studiously avoided taking sides. If the German people at one time, it says, have been one of the candidates because they assumed that he was more friendly to Germany they now see their mistake.

The Frankfurter Zeitung also prints a leading editorial expressing the opinion that the outcome of the election is very much in doubt. It treats with great sympathy President Wilson's program for eliminating war through a peace organization established through propaganda of the peace idea, but refrains from expressing preference between candidates.

Vienna.—(Via London).—Nov. 4.—The Austro-Hungarian press which a week ago paid no attention to the American presidential campaign has discussed the subject during the last few days as thoroughly as the fragmentary reports reaching Vienna will permit. Generally the papers express the opinion that the result of the presidential election will have no influence upon the war.

GERMAN SHIPS NOT DRIVEN OFF IN RAID SAYS OFFICIAL REPORT

Berlin, Nov. 3.—Wireless to Sayville.—The Admiralty has made the following announcement: "It is once more stated that all the German torpedo boats which partook in the enterprise in the English channel on the night of October 26-27, returned. No boat was damaged by shells or mines.

"As to the English patrol boats sunk by German torpedo boats, the British Minister Balfour (first lord of the admiralty) admitted that the number was six. The official British report issued previously mentioned none. The German report gave their number as eleven, which, according to a new and careful investigation, must be considered as very conservative.

"The German torpedo boats were by no means driven away by the British for there were present no British forces that could have done this. The few British destroyers, which showed themselves, were in part sunk by shots, being so taken by surprise that they could not fire one

There Were 600

In Two Trains
 We left Norfolk on December 11th, for Shanghai, China. There were six hundred of us in two trains. We took the northern route, and were seven days going to Frisco. The navy transport "Buffalo" was lying in Frisco harbor waiting for us, and we were promptly transferred aboard, and started on the 19th of December, 1911, on our long journey across the Pacific ocean. I was continually learning and running into something new, and I'll admit that strange feelings and ideas were in me at the time from such new and sudden experiences. The Buffalo arrived at Honolulu on the 26th of December, 1911, just one day after Christmas, and we coaled ship all day of the 26th, and sailed in the evening much, as I was seasick for three days and didn't care whether I "cashed in" or not. It seemed to me that the waves were mounting high and that they would soon swamp the ship or that the ship would soon turn over in them. The ship stood on end and rolled over on her side, and I just decided that it would only be a matter of time until we would be in Davy Jones' locker, where many ships have gone in the same manner. But some of the old salts said it was just a little "choppy", and that I should wait until I had seen some real weather. I am glad to say I have never seen any such weather as that for five years, and since then I have made a few trips up and down the China coast, through the well known China Sea, which has the name of always being rough. I have seen nothing to compare with that trip during my cruise. It was rough for over twenty-one days I know of.

Says Honolulu Is

A Beautiful Place

Honolulu, a city which certainly justifies its good name, is a very beautiful place. I am sorry I didn't get liberty at this port on my trip out to the Orient. The Buffalo arrived at Shanghai on January 12th, 1912, and I felt quite relieved that such a long trip was over. I certainly liked the looks of the land around us. The first thing I noticed was the land and how barren it looked along the coast. There were very little signs of vegetation, such as trees and the like, which I had

MY CRUISE IN THE NAVY

That Joseph Burke, a Wheelersburg young man, who spent a few weeks at home this summer after five years' service in Uncle Sam's navy, chiefly spent in Chinese waters, made the best of his observations is clearly indicated by the highly interesting and graphic account of his long cruise, written by him for The Times and which will be reproduced in installments.

Following is the first installment of his vivid story:
 (By Joseph Burke)

The first time I heard of the navy, of the large ships and great taken in my life, and a big one for guns, it put a strange feeling in the start. I've thought since, for it me—a determined one to go to was the Oath of Allegiance to that place when I was old enough, the United States of America,

So on the morning of the 26th of June, 1911, I left my home at Wheelersburg, Ohio, and went to Cincinnati. I told the man in charge of the recruiting station there that I should like to enlist in the navy. They proceeded to put me through the required examination, and I am glad to say that I passed every requirement, for I was as sound as a dollar when I arrived at the recruiting station. After this examination was over I read the shipping articles they placed before me, so I would know what I was going up against. Then I was taken before Lieutenant Blain, there at the time, and sworn in. That is when I held up my right hand and took the first oath I had ever taken in my life, and a big one for navy, of the large ships and great taken in my life, and a big one for guns, it put a strange feeling in the start. I've thought since, for it me—a determined one to go to was the Oath of Allegiance to that place when I was old enough, the United States of America,

An Announcement and an Invitation of real importance to you!

WE are pleased to announce that we have contracted to sell the Maxwell Motor Car in this territory.

We have selected the Maxwell because we believe that it comes nearer to being the ideal car for the average family than any other on the market.

We were asked by various manufacturers to represent them in this territory, and before we made a decision we considered them all carefully, comparing the cars point by point, and making sure of the right choice, because you realize that taking the agency for a car means the same to us as the buying of a car does to you.

And we believe it is worth while for us to give you our reasons for the decision we made.

First we found the Maxwell complete—in every possible detail. The engine is modern, simply built, yet extremely powerful and durable. The car is light in weight, but sturdily constructed. There is an abundance of speed. The operation of the car is simple and easy. The light weight and great power, of course, mean economy in gasoline and oil.

Point by point the Maxwell is equal or superior to most cars selling for a few hundred dollars more. There is style, plenty of room for the full number of passengers which each model is rated to carry, and unusual comfort. We were gratified to find these features so pronounced in a low priced car.

The equipment is also complete. There is electric starter and electric lights, demountable rims, one man top, rain-vision windshield—everything the motorist needs for convenience and comfort.

And so when we found how the Maxwell compared in all these points—then considered the price of $595—several hundred dollars lower than any other car offering the same advantages, we were satisfied that it was the best car to sell, because it must be the car that people will want.

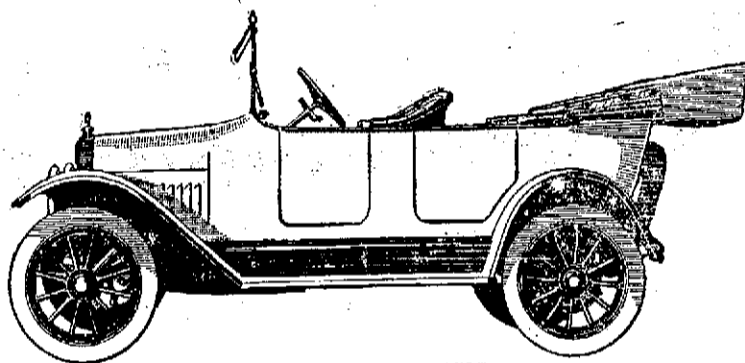

We are fully equipped to give prompt and satisfactory service to Maxwell owners—and we are in a position to make immediate deliveries. We will tell you more about the Maxwell in future advertisements—but meanwhile we invite you to visit our salesroom—and arrange for a demonstration at your convenience.

We are enthusiastic about the Maxwell—but no more so than you will be when you are acquainted with it.

been accustomed to seeing so much of in my own country. The next thing I noticed were the Chinese people themselves and their way of living. Everything in general looked so strange and unnatural to me. It seemed to me that the people's actions and their ways of working, and in fact everything that I came across, were just the opposite from what I had been accustomed to. I soon came to the conclusion that poverty didn't amount to much in the United States compared with China. That was after the Buffalo had anchored in Shanghai and I began to witness the coolies, or lower class, fight over the slop which we threw down our slop-chutney after each meal. They are always glad to get anything whatever that comes over the side of the ship. You notice the great number of people and you will say you never saw any large crowds until you visited China. You see as many on water as you do on land. When a new ship comes in the harbor the coolies always greet her from all directions. After I had been in China for a while they wouldn't allow these beggars to come around the ships, but instead we always connected up the fire hose and gave them a good washing if they came near. These beggars are filthy, and in hot weather would draw flies to the ship, and for that reason we had to keep them at a distance with our fire hose.

When we went ashore in Shanghai for the first time large crowds of jinielshu men were ready to meet us at the landing and hand us around for a few cents. (about

Speaking of Panics and Such--How About 1907 and the 'Teddy Bears'?

"Elect Hughes who will restore the high tariff and save the country from a panic after the war!"

"Remember the first year of the Wilson administration, with its soup houses and men out of work, and vote for Hughes!"

These are the battle cries of Hughes and the Republican spellbinders, during the last week of the campaign.

Thus, at the eleventh hour, having absolutely failed to make a dent in President Wilson's impregnable defense with any other issue, they turn in desperation to the same old bunk that was used to bamboozle the business man and the workingman in those "good old days" the only thing that can truthfully be said of it now is that it is the limit of mendacity and hypocrisy.

The last real panic that this country experienced was the panic of 1907. Theodore Roosevelt, then a Republican was president. There was a Republican majority in both houses of congress and the Dingley tariff was in full force and effect. Industrial conditions were so bad that every side track in the country was crowded to the limit with empty freight cars and silent engines.

Remember the popular name for these "empties?" "Teddy Bears!"

Remember how in the midst of the panic, J. P. Morgan went to see Roosevelt and "showed" him how it was necessary to permit the United States Steel Corporation to swallow the Tennessee Fuel & Iron Co., in direct violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, and that Roosevelt, bringing to bear on the proposition the same "courage and firmness" he now ascribes to Hughes, permitted Morgan to get away with it?

We had hoped that it would not be necessary to this campaign to exhume any of these skeletons from the Republican high tariff graveyard, but it seems that it must be done in the interest of truth.

Lest we forget, let us read a few paragraphs as they were printed in the newspapers during the winter of 1907-1908, when we were enjoying the blessings of a Republican tariff that we are now told we must have and individual bankruptcy "after the war."

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 20, 1908—Five hundred men besieged office of superintendent of poor for food. Four men taken to hospital suffering from starvation.

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 10, 1908—Riot follows application of 1000 men for 400 jobs, advertised by the Jos. Campbell Co.

GRANITE CITY, MO., April 5, 1908—Fifty men kneel before various churches pleading for work. One man killed himself because he failed to obtain work.

DETROIT, MICH., Jan. 28, 1908—More than 2,000 men march to the city hall to solicit work of mayor.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13, 1908—School children numbering 5000 mob the restaurant of Adolph Lorber to obtain meals offered by Lorber.

PHILADELPHIA—Loan of $9,000,000 to provide funds for public works asked by the city for unemployed. Race riot followed demonstration of unemployed demanding work. Italians attacked by men of other nationalities.

NEW YORK, March 15, 1908—Government urged by Central Federated Labor union to let contracts for subway to furnish work for 500,000 men unemployed.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., Jan. 28, 1908—Organized unemployed league formed. Demands the issuance of $23,000,000 in bonds to aid the unemployed.

So general was the sentiment throughout the nation among men of all parties, that the iniquitous Dingley tariff was at the bottom of the trouble, that the Republicans had to promise a tariff revision in their 1908 platform to save themselves from defeat.

Taft was elected on this platform because the country believed that he would force his party in congress to keep its pledge for tariff revision.

But Taft spent most of his time playing golf to reduce his weight and the Republican congress enacted the Aldrich tariff law, which revised the tariff up instead of down.

Taft didn't have the courage or the wisdom or something to veto the Aldrich bill, although he admitted in a public speech that it was a violation of the Republican pledge.

At the next congressional election in 1910 the Democrats captured the house of representatives.

This was what the country thought then of the high tariff policy of the Republican party and the violation of its pledge.

Two years later, Woodrow Wilson was elected president on a platform pledging downward revision of tariff.

He called a special session of congress, Democratic in both branches as he was inaugurated, and congress remained in session until it had honestly kept the pledge to lower the tariff by passing the Underwood bill.

Of course business was not good in this country while the tariff was being changed or shortly after it was changed.

A tariff change either up or down always unsettles business for a time. But at no time during the presidency of Wilson, prior to the war, were industrial conditions anything like as bad as they were during the panic of 1907-1908 under Roosevelt.

The tide of business in this country turned for the better several months before the European war began and every man who is not so full of high tariff dope that he can't see or think straight knows it.

The next time a man talks to you about Democratic soup-houses and asks you to help save the country by voting for a high tariff just say to him:

"How about the panic of 1907 and the 'Teddy Bears'?"

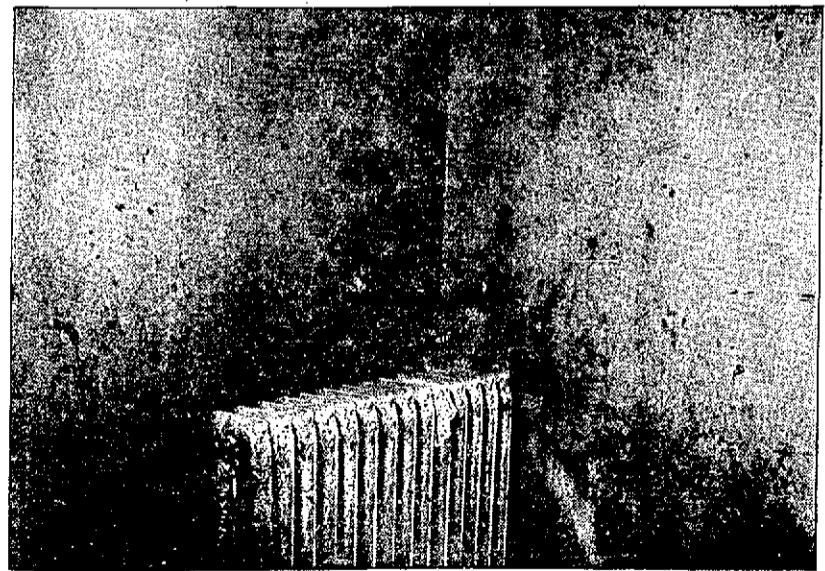

We rather think that will hold him for a while.

To The Voters of Scioto County:

I wish to present my idea of what a probate judge should be. The county office that comes nearest to the people is that of probate judge. Through it ultimately pass all the property interests. The estate of every individual who dies must be administered through it. This means the court has oversight of the interests of the widowed, fatherless and orphaned. Whether their inheritances shall be wasted and lost, or preserved and promoted, rests most largely with the prudence and wisdom of him who presides over the court. If he has prudence he will carefully and closely watch over the administrator of the estate, and if he has good judgment he will be able to direct and control affairs so that there will be no dissipation, but safe management and accumulation, if the latter be at all possible.

Naturally then, this office ought to be a matter of the most serious concern, and the character of the man who aspires to fill it should be carefully investigated.

When it comes to voting for him there should not be any irresponsible saying, "I guess he will do," but a firm and sincere conviction that he will do, and you should know that you are voting for the best man who aspires to the office. To this end this office has been removed from the partisan ballot and placed on a separate and distinct ticket, aside from all political parties, so that the voters will be more inclined to choose the man and not the party.

Corner of room in Probate Court showing ink spots on walls.

I present herein two photographs—one of Attorney Alex C. (Sandy) Woodrow and the other a corner in the office of the Probate Judge of Scioto county, Ohio.

On December 20th, 1914, Mr. Woodrow was violently assaulted by Attorney Nate B. Gilliland, with an ink well. The spots in the large picture in this advertisement show where the ink well hit the radiator and the ink splattered over the plaster when the ink well glanced off Mr. Woodrow's head. Mr. Woodrow was knocked unconscious, bled freely and was removed from the courthouse on a stretcher, and required the services of a physician for sometime, as result of the assault. Mr. Gilliland was fined for contempt of court and sent to jail. This was the outgrowth of what would ordinarily be a friendly controversy between two lawyers in trying a minor case in probate court.

Do you think a man with such a violent temper as must be possessed by anyone who would commit the act related above fit and proper to have charge of the destinies of your CHILDREN, of your estate, and, if you should die, of the property you leave to your wife and loved ones?

Do you believe that a man who has been so unscrupulous politically that he would run on Democratic, Republican, Independent and Progressive tickets for the last fifteen years is a man of the proper stability for the office of probate judge.

Children of tender years will come before the probate judge during the next four years for correction and fatherly advice. These children are entitled to the service of the best man offered for this high position. Think carefully before you vote for a man whose actions indicate that he has a violent temper and has demonstrated his lack of fixidity of purpose.

Repudiates Labor Leader's Statement

Columbus, O., Nov. 4.—Percy Tellow, vice president of the Ohio Federation of Labor, and prominent member of the United Mine Workers' organization, today repudiated the statement issued by John Voll, president of the State Federation of Labor, relative to the attitude of Governor Willis to the proposed amendment to the workmen's compensation law.

"The statement is unauthorized by the Ohio Federation of Labor, and is wholly unfair to Governor Willis," said Tellow. He declared that the position of Governor Willis toward workmen's compensation is absolutely fair and added that the proposed amendment had been submitted to some of the most eminent attorneys in the state who hold that it is extremely doubtful that this act desired.

"With this information before him, Governor Willis could not make any other reply than that which he did make," said Tellow. "The statement of Mr. Voll is intensely partisan. His statement does not represent the view of the great mass of the workmen of Ohio."

Where Credit Has The Same Purchasing Power as Cash

Realizing that the great drawback in Diamond buying is the large cash outlay at one time, we originated this plan of selling high grade Diamond Jewelry on a basis that makes it not only a possibility to own Diamonds but a good, sound business transaction that is economical from any standpoint.

At Christmas time the advantage of this plan is even more accentuated on account of the many demands on our pocketbooks.

This original idea which is known as appeals to the thrifty man or woman who demands the best at the right price with the privilege of small monthly or weekly payments.

So thoroughly have we perfected this service that credit becomes the same as cash, giving the values that would accompany a cash transaction.

The initial payment which gives immediate possession is small and the subsequent payments so arranged, covering a long period of time, that the giving of a Diamond Gift becomes an easier purchase and far more satisfactory to both the giver and recipient.

Our new Art Catalog which contains illustrations of newest designs in Diamond Jewelry will be mailed on request.

REVIEW OF WEEK'S MARKETS

New York, Nov. 4.—Political considerations entered very largely into this week's active operations in the stock market. High grade stocks held their ground, though subjected to occasional pressure with new records for United States Steel and other issues of a more speculative character. An unusually large percentage of the trading came from professional sources, public interest being held in check by various developments, including some of the latest phases of the international situation. It was not denied, however, that domestic conditions, as indicated by railroad earnings, increasing demand for raw and finished products of all descriptions and the super-abundant supplies of cash favored the long account. In addition to steel, new maximums were registered by some of the leading copper and equipment, and other issues whose earnings are not dependent upon the continuation of the war. Respecting the latter situation, announcement was made of a full subscription to the new $500,000,000 British loan, in which the interest yield is somewhat more attractive than in the preceding offerings. From a speculative standpoint the most interesting feature was the further inquiry for low-priced rails, some of which made their best prices in years. Conspicuous among these issues were Rock Island, whose annual report gave promise of an early release from the existing receivership. Chicago and Alton and others of the same class now emerging from, or in process of reorganization. Also gold was received from Canada but bankers in control of that movement intimated a temporary cessation. Stealing and frames were without material change but discounts on Austria, Italy and Russia were more favorable in this country.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, Nov. 4.—During the greater part of today's brief and uneventful session the supply of stocks offered by traders in settlement of outstanding accounts seemed in excess of demand with a consequent easing of values. This condition was later rectified to a degree by short covering induced by favorable trade developments, including another advance in refined copper and information of a further upward turn of prevailing steel and iron subjects. Gains of 4 to 5 points in speculative issues were met by corresponding declines in more important quarters. United States Steel reflecting pressure with other leaders. The closing was irregular. Total sales were estimated at 350,000 shares. Bonds were firm, regular changes at today's opening indicated a closing of professional contracts customary at the week end. Trading was relatively light with advances extending from fractions to over a point in the equipments, Marines, Central Leather and Continental. Car while Stess-Sheffield gained over 2 points. Rails were a negligible factor. Utah Copper forfeited only a part of yesterday's moderate advance, concession to Crucible Steel, Standard and Cuba Cane Sugar and more than a point in Peoples Gas. United States Steel later developed a reactionary tendency which spread to the metals.

WEEK'S REVIEW OF GRAIN AND PROVISIONS

Chicago, Nov. 4.—Despite sharp temporary bulges, the wheat market in the last week has leaned mainly to the bear side. Bales in Argentina handicapped the bulls and so, too, for a time did the apparent prospect of a renewal of tension between the United States and Germany. The outcome has been net declines of 1/4 cent to 1/2 cent as compared with a week ago. Whether the drought in Argentina could yet be regarded as effectually broken, the fact seemed to be increasingly evident that extreme fears concerning the cutting down of the Argentine exportable surplus would hardly be realized. Before this aspect of the supply situation was to any extent cleared up, the market impelled by urgent foreign demand last Saturday touched new high record prices, well above any previous level for 28 years. Influence of obtaining storage insurance in Chicago was an added burden on speculative prices and there was a slumping stock in the fact that Minneapolis millers appeared to be making liberal use of shipments from Canada. But export business yesterday and the day before rallied the wheat market from setbacks due to continued reports of Argentine rains and the end thereof, many holders were inclined to take profits as doubt seemed to prevail as to a steady maintenance of foreign demand in the face of some evident lack of enough readily available ocean tonnage. Increasing arrivals of corn tended to make that cereal relatively weaker in price than either wheat or oats. Losses in oats reflected the weakness of other grain but were only fractional. Provisions have been depressed by unusually large receipts of hogs that were too light in weight to meet with quick disposal.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS

Chicago, Nov. 4.—Wheat prices weakened today, influenced by a fall of 1 cent in quotations in Buenos Ayres, where reports pointed to further beneficial rains for South and Central Argentina. The opening which ranged from 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 lower, with Dec. 18 1/2 to 18 3/4 and May 14 1/2 to 14 3/4, was followed by a moderately rally and then a 1/2 cent lower than before. The close was weak 1/2 to 2 1/2 net lower, with December at 18 1/2 to 18 3/4 and May at 14 1/2 to 14 3/4. Corn eased off with wheat. The fine weather too, gave an advantage to the bears. After opening 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 lower, the market continued to decline. The close was, nevertheless, work at 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 net decline, this paralleled the bearish action of other cereals. The chief buyers were shorts taking profits. Lower quotations on hogs weakened provisions. The quickness with which offerings were taken, however, led to a prompt recovery.

Every Republican Should Endorse The Administration of Governor Frank B. Willis Next Tuesday

His administration has been free from suspicion. Everything done is an open book to the people of the great state of Ohio. Mr. Willis has fulfilled all promises—made good on every plank of the Republican platform. He has shown himself to be a wise executive, demanding efficiency, insisting on the tax payers getting value for every dollar spent in the administration of the affairs of state. A vote of confidence has been earned by the governor. He deserves the backing of men who believe in the principles of the Republican party. Vote your ticket straight from top to bottom—give him an official family, every member of which is in sympathy with his ideals of government.

The Bruising of Satan

This will be subject of "First Sunday" BIBLE Lecture at TEMPLE THEATRE

SUNDAY, NOV. 5th, at 2:30 P. M. by Pastor W. H. SPRING

What is the Divine purpose with reference to Satan? Who is the "Seed of the Woman" referred to in the Genesis promise? Why did Jesus refer to himself as "The Son of Man" when other Scriptures tell us He was the Son of God? If God knew the results in advance, why did He permit Satan to tempt the first pair?

These and other intensely interesting questions will be answered in a Scriptural and satisfactory manner.

GAY AND GALLIA STREETS

John F. Eckhart, chairman of the Scioto County Republican Executive committee, issued the following statement Saturday morning:

"It is all over except casting the ballots. Scioto county is going for Hughes, Herriek and Willis by a majority of 2,000. Information received from the State Executive Committee, states that the state is safe between 50,000 and 75,000."

George L. Gableman, chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee, issued the following statement:

"Our size-up of Democratic prospects in Scioto county is that it has been the Harmon campaign ever again, which prompts the forecast that we will carry the county for Wilson, Pomeroy and Cox, elect our district candidates and a part of our county ticket."

"As in the Harmon fight, we have a united Democracy and an enthusiastic volunteer organization among the laboring people and farmers. The independent vote is almost a unit with us."

"The opposition has had an unlimited supply of funds for rallies, advertising and so-called 'organization work.' But it is the history of campaigns that the volunteer worker is a dozen fold more effective than the patriot, who must be paid to show any activity."

"We are confident that Scioto county will be found in the procession with Ohio and the Nation for peace, preparedness and continued prosperity."

Auto Covers For Sheels

Have you that old muslin cover that came over your automobile when you received it from the dealer? These covers are very useful. Send them to the home of Mrs. J. J. Rardin, 802 Waller street and Mrs. Rardin's bible class of the Bigelow church, will make them into sheets and pillow cases for the Associated Charities, where many demands are being made for such bed clothing. Many of these muslin covers have been left lying in the garages and can be worked up for some good.

HATFIELD CONFIDENT

Chairman C. S. Hatfield of the Republican State Executive Committee has issued the following statement:

"Charles E. Hughes for president, Frank B. Willis for governor, Myron T. Herriek for United States senator and the whole Republican ticket will carry Ohio by pluralities ranging from 60,000 to 100,000."

"The drift toward Hughes in Ohio during the last ten days or two weeks has been nothing short of remarkable. It is reaching the proportions of a landslide."

"Without exception, every former Progressive leader in Ohio is working actively for Republican success and the united harmonious Republican party in the state is lined up solidly and enthusiastically for the ticket from top to bottom."

"The Democrats have long since abandoned all hope of electing their state ticket and their candidate for United States Senator. For three weeks they have resorted to misrepresentation of the most desperate character in a frantic effort to stem the tide toward Charles E. Hughes. The wonderful demonstration which featured Mr. Hughes' visit to Ohio last Monday is only one of many evidences of his popularity and growing strength in this state."

"Ohio on Tuesday will repudiate Mr. Cox and voters of all classes will express their approval of the methods pursued by Governor Frank B. Willis."

CLAIM IT A "ROORBACK"

Columbus, Nov. 4.—Thousands of members of the Ohio Automobile association await formal repudiation of a postal card campaign for Governor Willis and against former Governor Cox signed by L. A. Gorrill as chairman of the publicity committee. The statements of the card have already been denounced as false, and the implications as malicious. Democratic campaign managers are awaiting denunciation of the work before deciding to advise every Democratic member to withdraw from the association.

Former President Charles James quickly denounced the card as a "roorback," saying that it was not authorized by the association. It developed that L. A. Gorrill is a clerk in the office of Republican State Chairman Hatfield who was brought to Columbus to do campaign political work and the statement was made that he is not only not a member of the automobile association but is not known even to own an automobile.

Chairman W. L. Finley of the Democratic State Committee is withholding judgment awaiting action of the association executives but desired to call attention to the series of "roorbacks" being used by Republicans at the close of this campaign.—Charles E. Morris.

WHICH DO YOU PREFER?

You Have THIS Under President Wilson:

Do You Want THIS in America Under Hughes and Roosevelt?

"There Must be a Just and Settled Peace."
WOODROW WILSON.

"There is Only One Choice as Against Peace, and THAT IS WAR."—WOODROW WILSON.

"Republican Success Would Mean Our Embroilment in the European War."—WOODROW WILSON.

"We Want a Hughes War and NOT a Wilson Peace."—U. S. Senator A. B. FALL, Campaigning for Mr. Hughes.

"I Would Instantly Have Taken Possession of Every German Ship Interned in This Country."—THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

"We (Roosevelt and I) Were in Complete Accord."—CHARLES E. HUGHES.

Do you want war with Mexico, with Germany or with England? If so vote for Hughes and Fairbanks.

They have not told you how they can avoid war and at the same time do what their friends expect them to do.

The tariff has been put out of politics by the creation of a tariff commission. The Democrats do things! There has been no panic in three years of war. What saved us? The new Federal Reserve System.

Thank Wilson!

The new rural credits act means six per cent money for every farmer who needs it.

Wilson thinks of the People.

"The country is at peace and is prosperous. Why change?"

THOMAS A. EDISON.

Under President Wilson we have had peace, prosperity and preparedness; peace with honor, prosperity without favoritism, preparedness without militarism.

"In dealing with Germany we have gained the greatest diplomatic triumph in a half century." CHIEF JUSTICE WHITE (Taft appointee) United States Supreme Court.

The country needs constructive men, not critics.

"Do nothing and you will make no enemies; do something and you will be criticised."—ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

President Wilson has done more for the plain people than any man since Lincoln.

There is plenty of money on the Republican side of this campaign. Who put it up? And why? Did they put it up to help YOU?

If the Republicans win this election, the leaders of the Senate will be Penrose, Smoot and Gallinger. Do you favor what they stand for? They named Hughes. If you vote for Hughes you give them a vote of confidence.

The election betting on Wall Street in 1864 was two to one against Lincoln.

He gave us EIGHT HOURS, let's give him EIGHT YEARS.

Reilly Bros. of 519-521 Second street have taken the agency for the Saxon automobile. that the election laws are carried out to the letter.

AMERICANS! STOP TO THINK!

Before you enter the voting booths on Tuesday, Nov. 7, there to help determine the well being of a nation and your own individual prosperity, think of these things:

A NATION DISGRACED

Hundreds of our citizens killed on the high seas. American vessels fired on and sunk. American factories blown up on our own soil. Our mail, even official documents, intercepted, their contents read, and remittances confiscated. Our merchants blacklisted, their trade secrets stolen, and their business ruined. Over five hundred Americans killed on Mexican soil. Hundreds of millions of American property destroyed. American territory invaded, American citizens murdered in their beds, and their homes burned. Two fruitless invasions of Mexico. The American Flag a signal for rioting and an emblem of danger instead of protection. A citizenship that invites injury instead of insuring safety. And not a single nation on earth that makes reparation for injury to our people.

If you want to continue the Nation's disgrace abroad, the demoralization of its internal affairs and a sure return to closed factories and begrudged charity, vote to continue the present administration!

If you are a red blooded American, who believes America should stand for something, that its citizens should be protected, and that its honor and prosperity are your highest aim, vote for Hughes for President, Willis for Governor and Herrick for U. S. Senator.

When this Nation demands respect, instead of cowardly wavering, it will be respected.

The surest way to war is to surrender correct principles. The direct road to peace is to show that this Nation fears no foe, respects the rights of others and demands respect for its own.

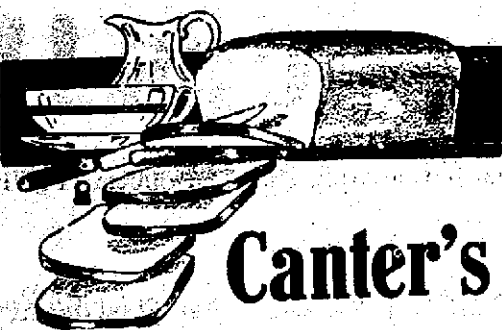

A NATION DISORGANIZED

A tariff act that shut factories, opened soup kitchens and established bread lines until the European war brought temporary prosperity. A terrifically wasteful list of appropriations, ill considered, illogical and burdensome. A Republican surplus turned into a deficit necessitating "war" taxes to hide incompetent Democratic fiscal management. A tremendous increase in the cost of living. An abject surrender of principle to avert a strike. A "gold brick" sold to labor under the name of an "eight-hour law" that does not give eight hours and provides no penalty for its enforcement. A disorganized navy. A preparedness program that has surrendered to the politicians on all matters. A neglect to enforce such measures of preparedness as were provided for.

That is the HUGHES--WILLIS--HERRICK Policy

Rumors About Steel Company

Various rumors concerning the Portsmouth Steel Company are rife, among one to the effect that the ingot makers were ordered to report Monday.

General Manager, J. R. Huston, is in Louisville on business, and at the company's office it was stated the report was unfounded.

As to the plant resuming operation, no definite information has been received from the company's general offices at Wheeling.

Scripps-Booth

King Alfonso, being under his royal insignia but a gentleman-driver, with a tasteful appreciation of Best Things, gets the same pride and enjoyment out of his Scripps-Booth that you do. He enjoys it for what it is, and for its beauty, which reflects his station. Its comfort appeals to him, and the fact that he can drive it himself without losing dignity. You will find Scripps-Booth in nearly every Royal garage in Europe outside of the enclosed war zone.

Scripps-Booth does business in a way that appeals. It moves with the least effort, meaning economy; it is light-fingered in the handling, light-footed in the going, quick, lithe and pliable, with a never-failing store of smooth-flowing power.

That it is the one American car whose prestige is as great abroad as at home, is impressive, but not surprising. It appeals to Those Who Know, for it in turn is sure of its own ground.

For Probate Judge Eighty Fords Sold In Past Few Weeks

X H. Stanley McCall

"The county office that comes nearest to the people is that of probate judge. Through it ultimately pass all the property interests. The estate of every individual, who dies must be administered through it. This means the court has oversight of the interests of the widowed, fatherless and orphaned. Whether their inheritances shall be wasted, and lost or preserved and promoted rests most largely with the prudence and wisdom of him who presides over the court. If he has prudence he will carefully and closely watch over the administration of the estate and if he have good judgment we will see, will be able to direct and control so that there will be no dissipation, but safe management and accumulation, if the latter be at all possible.

Naturally then this office ought to be a matter of the most serious concern, that is the character of the man chosen to fill it should be. When it comes to voting for him there should be any responsible saying I guess he will do, but a firm and sincere conviction to choose the best among all those offering. This purpose and this end is reflected in the law, which removes this particular office, in so far as it can do so, by placing the candidates therefore on a separate and distinct ticket from that set aside for the use of the political parties. Taking what seems to be the overwhelming measure of the community there is no doubt that Stanley McCall is the best qualified of the several aspirants to the place. Though quite a young man he has earned a distinct place as a talented lawyer. In the position of city attorney, though he had many vexing questions to deal with he acquitted himself with great credit, being intelligent, correct and prompt in all his duties. It would not be, therefore, as an unknown quantity and quality, that he would go to preside as probate judge. His proper equipment therefore in learning and experience is demonstrated. Careful in his speech, wanting to know before he does, honest in intent are his other qualities and those demanded particularly by the position."—Times Editorial.

Birth of a Thunderstorm.

It is not unusual for the careful observer to see a thunderstorm born on the square granite head of Longspeak, in Colorado. First, out of the blue sky, a slight mist seems to gather. In a few moments, while you watch it, it becomes a tiny cloud. This grows with great rapidity. In five minutes perhaps, the mountain top is hidden. Then, out of nothing apparently, the cloud swells and sweeps over the sky. Sometimes in fifteen minutes after the first tiny fleck of mist appears it is raining in the valley and possibly snowing on the mountain. In half an hour more it has cleared.—San Francisco Chronicle.

A Tribute to Woman.

When everything around a man staggers and wavers, when all seems dark and dim in the far distance of the unknown future, when the world seems but a picture or a fairy tale and the universe a chimera, when the whole structure of ideas vanishes in smoke and all certainties become enigmatical, what is the one permanent thing which may still be his? The faithful heart of a woman. There he may rest his head; there he will renew his strength for the battle of life, increase his faith in Providence and, if need be, find strength to die in peace with a benediction on his lips.—Henri Frederic Amiel.

Wage Earners !!

Will you let the Protective Tariff—that old Stalking Horse of Special Privilege—fool you again?

How about the "protection" of American wage earners in the "good old Republican Days," when employees of the Steel Corporation worked twelve hours a day for $1.50?

The Steel Trust Was Protected In Those Days--Were You? Were Consumers?

How about long hours and starvation pay in the woolen mills of Lawrence? Do you remember Lawrence?

Those Woolen Mills Were Highly Protected
Do you remember the want and misery caused by the strike in the Paterson Silk Mills? They were protected.

Low wages, long hours, industrial oppression, exploitation of the consuming public through high monopoly prices—these were the fruits of the Republican policy of "Protection" in the past.

And They Will Be Again

The worst drivers and exploiters of labor in the United States are the very men who are clamoring for a high tariff, "to protect the American working man!"

The Democratic tariff had nothing to do with the depression in 1913 and the Republicans know it. They know also that it began under Taft. When a Republican President was asked what to do about the unemployed he replied: "God knows!"

But Democratic financial legislation had everything to do with righting business and industrial conditions and preventing a disastrous panic at the outbreak of the European war. It prevented your savings—if you had any after Republican rule—being swept away in bank failures or wasted by unemployment.

H. P. Davison, partner of J. P. Morgan and ardent supporter of Candidate Hughes, is the latest to admit that our prosperity is bound to last for years after the war. He has just returned from studying economic conditions in Europe.

But give the "Old Gang" a chance to repeal the financial and other legislation that has saved the country from panics, and they'll make hard times and bread lines whenever it suits their purpose! And YOU will be the loser!

THE REPUBLICAN MANAGERS HAVE DEMONSTRATED IN THIS CAMPAIGN THAT THEY ARE MASTERS OF BUNCOMBE AND DECEPTION. BUT THE FACTS AND HARD COMMON SENSE ARE AGAINST THEM.

 "For A Woman's Fair Name", the big Vitaphone special feature on Monday is one of those exceptionally brilliant productions that tell a big story in a big way. Robt. Edeson, Harry T. Morey and Dolalic Jensen are at the head of a splendid cast.

Tuesday's Paramount brings Louise Huff in her second picture, "The Reward of Patience"—if you have never seen Louise Huff be sure and see her this time. She is wonderful and in a very short time she will be just as popular as Mary Pickford or Marguerite Clark.

Wednesday brings Ethel Clayton and Holbrook Blinn in the "Hidden Sear". Thursday brings Owen Moore and Margaret Courtot in "Rolling Stones". Friday, Edna Goodrich in "The House of Lies," all pictures of the higher class that will please the most particular.

Your Last Chance to See "The Little Girl Next Door" at the Columbia Tonight

Few photoplays exhibited in this city have aroused more genuine enthusiasm than "The Little Girl Next Door", which was shown at the Columbia yesterday, and will be shown for the last time again tonight.

The plot is but an incident of every day life, an incident which has not pleased much the eye of the public. An innocent little school girl, the pet and pride of the neighborhood, whose guileless attitude toward the world, is her potent enemy, is the center of the story. Her elopement, followed by her abduction by the agents of the white stavers, leads the spellbound audience through a series of thrilling incidents that are almost unbelievable.

Finally through the interest of a neighbor, a friend of the little girl next door, the matter of the lawlessness of the agents of the white slave people is brought to the attention of Governor Dunne, of Illinois, who appoints a Vice Commission to investigate the segregated districts. The results of their secret search is plainly told in the series of reels, which bares the souls of these unfortunate girls forced to lead a life of shame.

The play deals with facts, cold and stern, the red-tape workings of the ward politician, the splendid character of the District Attorney, a charming love story running all through the sordid play, which teaches a strong lesson of plain, every-day morality.

During the running of the picture, Miss Catherine Golden and Miss Beatrice Armstrong, two young ladies from the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, will sing several appropriate selections. Their singing yesterday was a real feature and highly praised.

At The Exhibit

"The Crooked Detective" is the title of part four of "Fantomous," that exciting and thrilling master criminal detective drama that is interesting Exhibit patrons every Saturday. Since Juve, the greatest detective in France, has been unable to apprehend Fantomous, there has gradually grown the suspicion that Juve himself is the super-criminal. It was argued that no one else had ever advanced the theory of a mysterious criminal band that it was probably part of a clever scheme to attribute crimes to a phantom. The head of the department of justice finally has Juve arrested and thrown in prison on a charge of himself being Fantomous. The disappearance of a bill collector is attributed to Fantomous. A mysterious American detective led the police to a wall behind which was hidden the body of the collector. He left before he could be thanked. The detective is killed at a ball.

Juve could not be Fantomous as he was in his cell. He was released to continue his search for the murderer.

A rip-roaring comedy completes a dandy four reel Saturday show.

World's Funniest Comedy At

Arcana Tonight

"Title's Terrible Tumble" is the title of an L-Ko comic that will be produced at the Arcana theatre tonight. It is a scream from beginning to end and is guaranteed to put you in a good humor for a week to come. It is clean, classy, captivating with a strong cast. Fun comes fast and furious and it is one uproar from the time the play begins until the ludicrous mix-up ends.

"The Price of Victory" is the title of a one reel Laemmle drama runs along the lines of patriotism. Don't miss the big attractions at the Arcana tonight—only five cents and worth twice that amount. Come where you'll always find the crowds.

Seven Big Reels At Temple Theatre Tonight—10 Cents

What will be one of the biggest motion picture shows ever produced in Portsmouth, will be the one at the Temple theatre tonight. In all seven reels will be shown, the headliner being "The Yellow Menace," a sex play of interest to every father and mother, young men and women in the city. It is a terrible exposition of the white slave question and should be seen by all. It is the first episode of this great problem and each one is pronounced to be in a class by itself. In addition to the "Yellow Menace, Manager Potts will show three other interesting productions, "Sin's Penalty," powerful two reel drama, "The Spiked Switch," great railroad show and a high-class comic, "The Serenade." On Monday evening Manager Potts will show at the Temple the local pictures taken during the Korn Carnival, "The Honeymoon of Mr. and Mrs. Korn." The admission tonight will be ten cents, admission Monday night 5 cents.

"The Desert of Lost Souls" is the title of chapter six of "Liberty" being shown at this popular East End theatre tonight. Liberty and Theresa are still prisoners in the camp of Lopez. POLITICAL LITERATURE DIDN'T SAVE KENTUCKIAN FROM FINE

Robert Sloan, of Wheelersburg, Magoffin county, Ky., was the name and address given by a young man whose association with the unknown who slugged John White, a Chillicothe street restaurant keeper, caused him to be arrested on a drunkenness charge Friday afternoon.

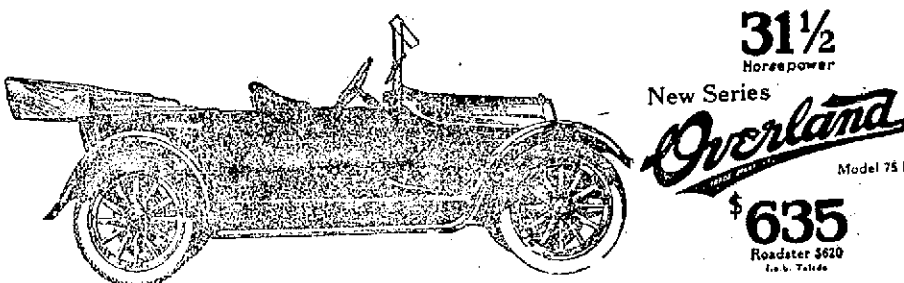

Sloan proved to be a veritable political store-house, packed as were his pockets with Kentucky Democratic campaign literature, poll-books and even a number of C. & O. party passes made out to Kentucky voters employed in Portsmouth and vicinity. Documents found on him indicated that he was particularly working in the interest of a certain candidate for a judgeship.

Sloan denied that he had been with the other man more than an hour, and disclaimed knowing him personally. It seems that the two called at White's restaurant to engage lodging. Mr. White was sleeping at the time. The woman in charge called him to find out if he wished to let any rooms during the time. When White appeared the other man, angered because he asked them 75 cents for the use of the room, struck him a staggering blow. After White regained consciousness he gave chase to the fellow, but lost him in an alley near the Seventh street engine house. Returning to his place, he refunded Sloan's money, and the moment the man reached the sidewalk Officer Millhoff arrested him. Sloan was fined $5 in police court Saturday.

Nearly everybody now knows the tremendous success Saxon "Six" has won.

Nearly everybody knows that Saxon "Six" is the finest car for less than $1,000.

Owners, of course, were first to find out this superiority. But it did not long remain merely a matter of owner knowledge.

For from them, thousands of them all over this country, came reports of its speed, its smoothness, its power, its acceleration.

They spoke frequently of its extraordinary gasoline economy, its unusual freedom from need of repair service, its superlative strength and stability.

And these reports coming day after day, growing constantly, have gradually molded and welded these individual beliefs into a common public belief that Saxon "Six" is the best car in its class.

Then as if to substantiate and confirm the superiority shown in private use, Saxon "Six" began to show its superiority in public competition.

It won a noted hill-climb in the East against many higher priced cars.

It defeated by fifteen minutes over a 500-mile course a train which is the pride of the West.

It thrice vanquished costlier rivals in speed, acceleration, and in hill climbing at the San Diego Exposition.

It exhibited acceleration from standing start to 45 miles per hour in 23.6 seconds.

So when you come to seek the reason for the overwhelming success of Saxon "Six" you will find it, most likely, in this matchless ability to perform.

If you should search still further you will find a two-fold answer.

First, that Saxon "Six" at the outset was built right, that the principles of its construction were correctly evolved and accurately carried to completion.

Second, that Saxon "Six" since the outset has been passing through a continuous condition of development and refinement.

So at this time, beyond these features you know, you will find these many added attractions listed at the side.

Over 2000 dealers now have this wonderful car for delivery. The list of those who will want this car immediately, who will be satisfied with no other, is long.

Those who order first will receive preference in delivery. So we urge you to see this car at your nearest dealer's at once.

Local German's View Of European War

(Written by Louis F. North, former Editor of The Correspondent.)

Friday, November 3, 1916.

Although the British and French have made no general attack on the Somme front since October 24-25, there has been enough heavy local fighting to swell the casualty list by the thousands on both sides in spite of the rainy season and the daily downpouring, which usher in the winter in the theatre.

The French took some trenches at Les Boeufs, northeast of Morval, but failed in a massed attack at Chaubert, the extreme southern point of the German front, at Baches, near Peronne, at Piers and at Saillly-Sallies. The Germans captured the whole La Maisonnette farm, the struggle for which has been going on for months, and repulsed a French counter attack to retake it. They made 412 prisoners, among them 15 officers.

The military critic of the Overseas Agency says the Germans have been handicapped of late by an insufficient supply of munitions and the loss of guns, but that has been remedied. They are now able to ward off the allies' attacks more effectively than before and the comparatively small gains of the latter recently demonstrate that their progress toward Bapaume and Peronne is slowing down.

In Thursday's report the Bavarian crown prince announced the repulse of heavy British attacks against his Guedecourt line.

The British war office gives the October losses, mainly on the Somme, at 107,033 and those of four months of the Somme offensive at 414,202. Appalling!

East of the Meuse the Germans have voluntarily evacuated Fort Vaux. After blowing up the most important works and destroying all guns which they could not remove, the small garrison left the fort at night without hindrance from the French. They were surrounded and had run short of supplies. For nearly a week they had been continually under fire, which made the fort untenable and approachable.

London claims that virtually all the ground east of the Meuse has been lost to the Germans, which is not the case. They yet hold all the ground and heights north of Donaumont, which they took last February, and what they have lost on ground south of it they save on men to hold it. Fort Vaux was isolated and of no more use to them. On the left bank of the Meuse their positions are intact.

From the mouth of the Volzhyca region to the south of Hiez on the Lemberg front there has been as much fighting this week as at any time since spring besides demonstrations on half a dozen points to keep the enemy from withdrawing troops.

Berlin reported on Monday: "The whole Stockhold line of Prince Leopold's front west of Lutsk was again attacked last Saturday by the Russians. The fighting was most severe in the woods of Selezehov. The battle lasted until Sunday night when the Russians retreated along the whole line, leaving thousands on the field." In a counter attack on Wednesday General Lisenko's troops stormed the Russian positions on the left bank of the Stockhold and took 1500 prisoners.

General Woyrsch, who with Prussian and Austro-Hungarian regiments is holding the positions in the Pripet country for the protection of the important railroad junction Baranovitchi, has repulsed at Krashin a violent Russian attempt to break his Tshara front. The fighting was in the same region where on June 13-14 the Russians lost 8000 men of their grenadier corps.

On Tuesday's report the German war office said: "Engagements on the Lemberg front in Galicia recalled favorably for us. Turkish troops, assisted by Polish legionnaires, took several important Russian positions in the Narajurvia region near Hiez, southeast of Lemberg."

The Wednesday's report reads: "Strong efforts were made by the Russians yesterday to recapture the lost positions. They charged five times but every time were defeated with heavy loss."

In a review of the Russian summer offensive the German general staff said of the Polish legion: "It distinguished itself at Graciatin (on the Stry) by bravely storming under a terrific fire of the enemy several important heights."

Two hundred and thirty years ago the great Polish leader Sobieski (King John I) fought in Volhynia and Galicia to save Lemberg from the Turks. Now the Poles are fighting with the Turks on the side of the Germans and Austro-Hungarians to save it from the Russians.

The Russian war office concedes that the Germans and Austrians are now conducting an energetic offensive in Galicia. It is successful too.

In the Dorna Watra region of the Southern Carpathians, where the territories of Russia, Rumania and Hungary join, the Austrians are trying to drive the Russians out of the Bistritza valley, from where they have been threatening the Borzo Pass into the Maros and Theiss country. Here the Russians from Bukovina and the Rumanians from Moldavia are maneuvering to effect a junction. On Tuesday the Austrians drove the Russians from several heights with the bayonet and captured five hundred.

In yesterday's official report of the Russian war office mention is made of very heavy fighting on the Zlota Lipa in Galicia and a defeat south of Brzesany admitted, also defeat and retreat of the Rumanians eleven miles south of the Thurm Pass on the Transylvania frontier their own territory, which shows that Falkenhayn is steadily advancing toward Bucharest.

Prince Leopold says, Austro-Hungarian battalions stormed strongly fortified Russian positions at Brzesany and captured nine machine guns.

Berlin says, many of the late Russian attacks were made without artillery preparation. Waste and shortness of munition account for it. The northern ports are being bound again and the munition supply by way of Norway has been cut off by the German submarine activity in the Polar Sea and in Scandinavian waters.

If we are to believe what the Odessa correspondent of a Petrograd news agency tells us, the Russo-Rumanians in Dobrudja have assumed the offensive to block Mackensen in his advance, but Berlin does not confirm it. Recent Sofia advices were that the Bulgarian cavalry in the pursuit of the enemy had reached the line Ostrov-Babadagh, only about 30 miles distant from the Lower Danube, and Berlin reported a wee kago: "Our troops are in touch with the enemy." There is no doubt but that the Russo-Rumanians will make another stand in Northern Dobrudja, perhaps risk an attack upon their pursuers before these get into strategic positions, as they have the advantage of ground. Between Ostrov and Babadagh on sea and river the country narrows down to a defile of about 40 miles, flanked by swamps and with a good sized elevation for battery positions in the center, making a favorable front, while Mackensen has to move his troops and artillery over poor swampy roads on which only slow progress can be made.

According to cable advices fighting in the Transylvania mountain passes and south of them on Rumanian soil continues violently. The Rumanians claim a victory in the Saurdick pass region and a retreat of the Austro-Germans at Kampolung to where they had advanced from Bukurn in the pass defile.

Berlin reports: "South of the Saurdick pass the Rumanians pressed back one of our columns. Southeast of the Thurm pass and Hermannstadt German troops have stormed the Aluta heights and taken over 700 prisoners. South of the Tonjoes pass (Kronstadt-Bucharest) we have taken Azara. The Austrians have captured the Orsova heights on the Iron Gate. (Where the Danube breaks through the mountains from Hungary into Rumania.) All efforts of the Rumanians to recapture positions along the Transylvania frontier have been without success."

The Berlin report is supplemented by an announcement of the Berlin war office, that strong Rumanian village positions west of the Predeal road (from Kron-stadt to Bucharest) have been captured with ten cannons and seventeen machine guns, quite an important success, which is admitted by the Russian war office, and that south of the Rothen Thurm pass along the Aluta river and the Hermannstadt-Krajova railroad General Kraft is fighting and also advancing successfully. It closes with the information that in Dobrudja General Mackensen's troops have reached Hirsova, where the Rumanians had built a pontoon bridge over the Danube, which they destroyed, and that Bulgarian cavalry has occupied Babadagh near the coast, 50 miles north of Constantza. Hirsova is about 20 miles south of Ostrov, on which the Russo-Rumanian right is said to be resting.

A correspondent at General Falkenhayn's headquarters explains his slow movement from Kronstadt to Bucharest with terrain difficulties. Every mountain top has been turned into a fortress and on the slopes batteries are built in while everywhere new paved roads have been constructed to facilitate the movement of reserves and reinforcements. All this necessitates frequent flanking operations and corresponding delays.

In Macedonia the hard work seems to be left to the Serbians, while there is only local and artillery fighting on the British-French fronts in the Vardar and Struma regions. The Bulgarian war office says: "A series of desperate attacks along the Cerna river southeast of Monastir resulted in sanguinary defeat for the Serbians." Berlin confirms this and adds that the Serbian losses were very heavy.

From the Italian front Vienna reports new unsuccessful attacks on the Carso Plateau and in the Wippach Valley (Isouzo). Rome sends out sensational dispatches about heavy Austrian losses on the Carso. There are no direct or official reports from Cadorna's front.

Quite a panic has been created in England by a battle in the British channel between German and British destroyers and torpedo boat flotillas. The German Admiralty says in its report of the fighting: "Our ships started from Zeebrugge and broke the British line for the protection of troop transportation across the channel between Folkestone and Boulogne. They sank or damaged at least eleven patrol boats and several torpedo boats, and returned without loss to their base." The British Naval Secretary Balfour admits the loss of the destroyer Flirt, the mail steamer Queen, an empty troop transport and of six patrol boats. The destroyer Nubian was seriously damaged, he says, but possibly could be made seaworthy again. He speaks of the probable destruction of two German torpedo boats by mines.

The Overseas News Agency wires that three German submarines just returned from a cruise in the St. Georges channel reported the destruction of 21 enemy ships of 25,500 tonnage within three days.

That the Allies have no confidence in the Greek army is to be seen from their demand that what is left of it is to be withdrawn from the north and interned in the Peloponnese, where it will be out of harm's way to them. The king has had to give in but that will have no influence on the general situation in Greece. Its fate and that of the Venizelos revolution will be decided on the Danube and the plains of Walachia, not at Athens.

Great Britain has refused to lift the blacklist just as she refused to lift her illegal blockade which led to the submarine warfare. The Deutschland and the U-53 have put a big hole into it.

With a majority of almost 100,000 in a referendum vote the people of Australia have declared against universal conscription. 80,000 of her troops, more than 25 per cent, have been lost.

Toronto papers say, Canada has put 365,000 men into the field in two years, 500 a day. Now there are hardly fifteen recruited per day in Toronto, a city of 400,000, which has done the most, Quebec (French) has hardly responded.

The babies in German cities cry for milk. A milk famine exists.

Prince Henry of Prussia has been appointed grand admiral of the German navy in place of Von Tirpitz.

The socialist fraction of the German Parliament has voted for the new war credit of 12,000 million marks, demanded by the government, only fifteen radicals voted against it. Halil Bey, the Turkish premier, told the Vienna correspondent of the Associated Press, that the economical as well as the military situation of Turkey were entirely satisfactory.

There was no need or necessity of surrendering Gorizia. It could have been held and was given up against orders. This is the verdict of the Austrian military court, which tried the commander of the garrison, who has been cashiered.

The Swedish government has energetically protested in Petersburg against Russian mine-laying in Swedish waters.

England's national debt has reached the 20 billion mark, $20,000,000,000, and is growing every day. Will she ever be able to pay even the interest on it?

The German aviator corps has lost its hero. Captain Boelle. After bringing down forty enemies he shared their fate at Cambrai.

A correspondent at the German Somme headquarters considers the tanks of which the allies make so much, a failure. He says they move too slow and give the German artillery time for target practice. The Germans call them caterpillars.

The bread question will bring on a revolution in Russia unless the government helps and helps soon. The situation is a critical one. The Duma has been forced to take up the matter. These are Petersburg advices based on Duma proceedings, not rumors, Berlin states.

Letters from officers of the Greek division interned in Goeritz, Silesia, to friends in Washington, state that 5000 men are quartered in wooden barracks and the commissioned officers in tents. They have kept their arms and drill every day. After duty hours they have the freedom of the city.

The murderer of the French Socialist leader Faure, who shot him in a Paris restaurant shortly before the war broke out, has renewed his demand for a trial, because he is suffering from tuberculosis. Faure spoke and wrote against the French alliance with Russia and against the war. It is feared that the murderer's trial would commit French politicians in high position and for that reason has been held up, a Swiss Socialist paper says, which comments upon the matter under the caption "The Skeleton in The Closet."

The marine insurance business is getting to be unprofitable in England and Lloyd's shares, which once were as stable and solid as government bonds, are dropping. All on account of the submarine warfare. Lloyd's was originally a Welshman's ale tavern (beer-house) on Tower street near the harbor, where ship owners and sea captains used to meet. During the Napoleonic wars, when marine business was as risky as it is now, a number of the substantial frequenters of the place met regularly every forenoon at Lloyd's and formed a shipper's exchange out of which the largest insurance business of the world has grown. Today it occupies a whole suite in the palatial Royal Exchange in London, but it has not dropped the Lloyd's which originally meant the Welshman's tavern.

Correcting the British statement that thousands of Belgians had been transported to Germany to work in munition factories the German authorities state that no workers in steady employment have been taken, only idlers, and these were put to work on farms and in non-military establishments. It was a measure to guard against famine and possible trouble in the winter.

General Hindenburg, who is now chief of staff, told a correspondent of the Vienna N. F. P.: "The military situation is as favorable for the Germans as it could be wished." In regard to the probability of shortening the western front, the general said: "Why should we? The local British and French gains with their enormous wastage of men and munition will not compel us to do that. We rely upon our troops. They stand as an iron wall."

The judges in the mistake page contest have completed their work of checking up the mistakes of the different contestants with the following results:

- First prize of five dollars, Mrs. C. C. Bennett of 1651 Eighth street.
- Second prize, $4.00, Welhelma Justice, 1316 High street.
- Third prize of $3.00, Mrs. John Parker of 1725 7th street.

Miss Dolly Wise.—In case I wanted to vote a straight Republican ticket with the exception of governor, would I put the X under the eagle to signify that it was straight Republican, then put an X in front of the other governor, or would I leave the X out of circle and mark for every man on the ballot with this exception of governor? Many thanks.

VOTER.
If you wish to vote Republican ticket and scratch the governor place X in circle under eagle and put X opposite governor you wished to vote for. You can also mark every name on the Republican ballot with the exception of governor and then go to the other ticket and put an X in front of the name of the candidate for governor for whom you wish to vote.

Dear Miss Wise.—Will you please state when the carpenter's wages was raised from $3.00 to $3.50 per day. A READER.

In the spring of 1913, if I'm not mistaken.

St. Sam Houston, Tex., Nov. 1, '16
Miss Dolly Wise.—Please ask the girls who take the Portsmouth Daily Times to write me a letter, for I am so lonesome down here. I haven't any people to write to. My father and mother are dead. A letter will surely cheer up a soldier boy. I am 5 feet, 9 inches high, weigh 158 lbs, black eyes and black hair and complexion fair. My address is Sam McDowell, Fort Sam Houston, Co. B, Second Infantry, W. Va., N. G. San Antonio, Texas.

Miss Dolly Wise.—Dear Dolly, have an old bachelor friend and would like for you to help me select something for a Xmas present. He has a Hope Box. Do you think it would be all right to get or make something for the box, if so what would you suggest and please give me some information about a course in night high school in taking short hand and type writing. Would it be necessary to take English also? Oblige yours, NANCY.

You might give him a pair of towels or pillow cases for his hope box. There won't be any of the name of the candidate for night high school this winter.

However if you want to take a business course at night you can do so at the Portsmouth College of Business in the Krieger building. Your writing is just fair.

Dear Dolly.—I am engaged to a young man and in spite of my objections, he insists on flirting with girls. When I accuse him of it he wants to know what I call flirting, saying to look at a girl and wink is not flirting. I have cautioned him but it seems the more I tell him I dislike it the more he flirts. Now Dolly, if he does this before we are married, what will it be after? Please advise me. MARJORIE.

He's probably doing that just to tease you. Maybe the girls do not see him winking at them. Don't pay any attention to what he does along that line for awhile and he may quit flirting.

Dear Miss Wise.—Kindly inform me as soon as possible concerning the following questions: I want to school with a certain boy but since he left school he has become a very bad drunkard, has stolen several times, has been in jail, work house and pounded stone on the roads and every time I meet him on the street he will speak and as I have a good reputation I want to hold it. Shall I speak to him or not? Sometimes I am with different people and they look so surprised.

APPRECIATIVE READER.
It won't hurt your reputation to speak to him if you can't avoid doing so. You can explain to your friends that you knew him before he became "down and out" if necessary.

Dear Dolly.—Please tell me something that will take pimples off my face. I am getting so many that they worry me. Some small method. M. M.

I answered this question several times within the past week or so.

Dear Miss Wise.—Would you please tell me something that would be sure and reduce my weight. BESSIE.

If you want to reduce, you will have to quit eating so much. Just eat only enough to live on for awhile and see how it works out.

Marie—I haven't time to figure out puzzles.

W. A. M.—They were here on the 19th and are still here. If you want to see any of them go around to the office and meet them or make an engagement over the phone.

The present production promises to be the big event of the season, as many well known and popular young people will appear in the leading roles. "The Wishing Ring" is really a wonderful play and many of the features are so novel that it has fairly taken its audiences by storm. In many ways the production suggests the "Blue Bird" of Maeterlinck, in which Tytil and Metyl are the children who face forth in search of happiness, as represented by the "Blue Bird."

Mr. Harmon has expressed much enthusiasm in regard to the histrionic musical, and dancing ability of the local performers and predicts that the production will be one of the best he has ever staged.

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, gripping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without gripping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint with the attendant bad breath.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their live color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

OLD TIME COLD CURE-DRINK TEA!

Get a small package of "Hamburg Breast Tea," or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Tee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teaspoon full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.

TO REMOVE DANDRUFF
Get a 25-cent bottle of Dandruff at any drug store, pour a little into your hand and rub well into the scalp with the finger tips. By morning most, if not all, of this awful scurf will have disappeared. Two or three applications will destroy every bit of dandruff; stop scalp itching and falling hair.

CROSS, FEVERISH
CHILD IS BILIOUS
OR CONSTIPATED
Look, Mother! See if Tongue Is Coated, Breath Hot or Stomach Sour

"California Syrup of Figs" Can't Harm Tender Stomach, Liver, Bowels

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs," that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative" and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

A Wet and Dry National Election

Did you know that every four years we hold a wet and dry election? Your Uncle Sam gives you a chance to say at the ballot box what you want. If you want a high tariff you vote with a high tariff party. If you want peace you vote with a peace party. Why not apply the same test to the liquor traffic? If you want the liquor traffic destroyed root and branch why not tell your Uncle Sam so next Tuesday? Where does your party stand, Mr. Democrat and Mr. Republican?

First, we will take a look at the Republican platform. It virtually says "We don't recognize this awful traffic, we are very much concerned about the tariff on sugar and steel, buttons and bags, etc., and besides the men who make whiskey are our friends, they vote our ticket and pay a dollar ten a gallon revenue tax—and—and—they shell out liberally to our campaign funds and to be plain about it we

COULD NOT WIN THIS ELECTION WITHOUT THEIR VOTES

Just wait, Mr. Dry Man, until we get the tariff settled and these war questions and a whole lot of other issues settled and then we might take a stand against the liquor traffic."

The Democrats ignore this great question and are in the same class as the Republicans.

The Prohibition party says in their platform virtually "Kill the liquor traffic, root and branch at the ballot box by the party method. Begin at Washington—change all the officials from president to constable. In other words enact a rigid prohibitory law, and then place officials in authority who are friends of the law. Prohibit the shipment of liquor from one state to another. Prohibit the use of the mails for soliciting business or ordering liquor in the land. That is just part of our program. Give no man the right to sell liquor where the Stars and Stripes float.

Until YOU—we mean YOU—tell Uncle Sam at the ballot box that you want a sober nation,—Good clean citizens, a clean country for our boys and girls, we will continue to have rum ruled officials in city, state and nation. Crime, misery and poverty all around us—Vote for a change.

Two Billion Dollars

Is the saving of this vast sum important enough to be one of the big issues in this campaign? This is our annual drink bill. This waste turned into the channels of trade and we would have such prosperity as we never dreamed of. Ask the governors of 19 Prohibition states what Prohibition has done for their commonwealths and to a man they say: "Our people are happy and prosperous. Drunkenness and crime are decreasing." What is good for a state is good for the nation. Start your part in this good work next Tuesday by voting for HANLY and LANDRITH. Our state ticket is composed of men well fitted for any high office. A. S. Watkins our candidate for U. S. Senator, is the only dry candidate in the field. If you want a Senator TO PUSH Prohibition legislation—one who won't "duck" vote for Watkins.

Who Is The Laboring Man's Friend -- Mr. Hughes or Mr. Wilson?

"By Their Fruits Ye Shall Know Them"

By S. H. HUFF

Roanoke, Va.

General Chairman of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers for the Norfolk and Western System

To one interested in the welfare of organized labor it is most interesting to note the many violent efforts that are being made by the Campaign Managers of Mr. Hughes to get the laboring man to forget that he is and has been the friend of the favored few and the enemy of organized labor. These people are making many futile efforts by distorting and misquoting facts, to make Mr. Hughes look like that which he is not.

For the benefit of those who may be interested in the record of Governor Hughes on labor legislation, I wish to say that Mr. Thos. E. Ryan, Chairman of the New York State Legislative Board, representing the B. of L. F. and E., describes Governor Hughes as being a ZEALOUS friend of the Railroad Corporations and opposed to any legislation to regulate conditions on their lines, and further describes him as the "Little Brother of the Rich" and refers us to the following legislation that met its death as a result of the persistent use of the Governor's veto pen: A Full Crew Bill, A Vestibule Bill, which was designed to protect employees from exposure. An Anti-Strike-breaker and Anti-thug Bill. The Coney Island five-cent street car fare bill, which was designed to permit the laboring people of New York City to get out for recreation at rates they could afford.

Later Governor Hughes vetoed a revised Vestibule Bill, for the protection of employees; yet his campaign managers have the effrontery to say to the laboring people that his record as governor is unassailable. President Wilson had the honor of serving as the Chief Executive of the State of New Jersey and as such no one has dared to accuse him of making an unfavorable move toward organized labor, during the time he has served as president of this nation, his friendliness toward the man who toils shines like a beacon light in the darkness, and is without a parallel in this or any other country. The unscrupulous critics of Mr. Wilson, have, they claim, succeeded in finding that at some time in his life, either as private citizen, or school-teacher, that he said something that they think should be construed to mean that he was unfriendly to labor. Certainly if this is all they can bring out they should be ashamed to mention it, because the laboring people are not interested in the sentiments entertained by Mr. Hughes, or Mr. Wilson, toward labor as private citizens, but are interested in their sentiments as public servants and presidential candidates.

A great deal of stress is being laid on the short-comings of the Adamson Eight Hour law, and it is most remarkable that politicians backed by the favored few and Wall Street, would spend so much time and money trying to convince the Train Service Employees, that have not got what they want, but have a law that will reduce wages and totally destroy our organizations, then in the same breath tell the farmer and shipper that he is going to be thrown into bankruptcy because of the increased rates that the Railways will have to charge to meet the exorbitant salaries that the employees will draw as a result of this same law. Now, Mr. Politician, the railroad employees are not being misled as to the purpose of this attack on the Eight Hour Law, because it is very clear to them why unscrupulous politicians are taking such a hand in the education of these men at this time, they realize that this is a cleverly devised method adopted by the managers of Mr. Hughes's campaign to try to win some of the labor votes, which he had no idea that he would need when he made his assault upon the Eight Hour Law, the President and our organizations.

The attack upon the efficiency of the Adamson Eight Hour Law, by these people, is made with view of prejudicing the men against the agency that gave it to them and not for the purpose of extending sympathy or assistance to railroad employees. It is a campaign policy to try to make these men feel dissatisfied with this law until after the election, because it has been decided that if they can discredit this law they can break the tie that binds the train service employees to President Wilson, and in as much as the election comes off before the law takes effect they are at liberty to make any violent assertions that the men will listen to, but fortunately these men are capable of doing a little thinking themselves.

No one seems exercised over this law at this time, except the campaign managers of Mr. Hughes; the Railway employees affected seem to be happy and they feel inclined to say to Mr. Politician, that

If this law suits us why should you worry, because it is not customary for the interest that he represents to come around and try to prevent organized labor from committing suicide, or falling in fire, they are more inclined to give it a little push in that direction. When the man who earns his daily bread by the sweat of his brow, takes into consideration the many things that has come to him and to society as a result of the wisdom, unselfishness and statesmanship of President Wilson, his path of duty on the 7th day of November appears very clear to him, because they realize that they owe no duty to any party that will justify them in imperiling the best interest of organized labor and the peace and prosperity that they now enjoy. The Adamson Eight Hour Law, is by no means the only law that the laboring people have to thank Mr. Wilson, and his administration for. They have the Seaman's Bill, which ended the last vestige of human slavery tolerated by the United States, and the seafaring man is no longer regarded as property, to be used as slaves. Then they have the Clayton Act, which compels Federal Judges to regard workers as human beings and not as a commodity at the behest of the "Big Business." They also have the Child Labor Law, which I am sure meets with the hearty approval and appreciation of the laboring world. Last I will mention the Eight Hour Law for women in the District of Columbia, which should furnish a wholesome inspiration for the enactment of similar laws throughout the state. With all of these things present in the minds of the laboring people, there is no reasonable excuse that they can offer themselves or organized labor and society for declining to support our friend and President, Mr. Wilson, unless they should elect to say that they are so distressingly partisan that they are willing to sacrifice everything unconditionally on a political altar, but considering the intelligence of the Train Service Employees I am constrained to believe that cases of such unswerving devotion to party affiliation and disloyalty to the best interests of organized labor will be very rare.

Yours truly,

S. H. HUFF,

General Chairman B. of L. E., Norfolk & Western, Ry.,

Democrats Hold Final Rally; Are Confident Of Victory

Brimming over with confidence that the national, state, district and Seoto county Democratic tickets will be swept into office next Tuesday members of the Wilson-Marshall club held a well attended and enthusiastic meeting in their quarters in the Mason Temple Friday evening. W. R. Graham presided as chairman and William West as secretary.

It was a sort of a jollification meeting over the success of the big rally held Thursday night in Distel hall, which was addressed by Thomas Duffey and M. A. Daugherty. It was admitted on all sides that the rally was one of the best the Democrats have ever held in this city.

E. B. Lancaster of 1415 Eleventh street, employed as car inspector at the N. & W. freight depot was present and was prevailed upon to make a short talk.

In enthusiastic terms Mr. Lancaster defended President Wilson's Mexican policy, and he declared him to be the third greatest president in the history of the United States ranking with George Washington and Abraham Lincoln.

"It is only the capitalists who want Wilson to declare war on Mexico. Wilson is too smooth for them. They can criticize him all they want to but he has made good and he is going to be re-elected handsomely next Tuesday," Mr. Lancaster declared.

"You Democrats want to go to work as the county next Tuesday, the polls early and vote a straight. Arrangements were made to have tickets. You have reasons to be challengers in at all the precincts proud of every man on our county election day.

This is the year to stand together. I strayed away every vote was emphasized by from the Democratic path just Chairman Graham and every one, but I am back on it again present agreed to get on the job and believe every Democrat in early next Tuesday and work all the city, county, state and nation day in the interest of the Democracy will be on the job next Tuesday."

A number of short talks were made and confidence was expressed on all sides that the Democrats would be victorious at the polls next Tuesday.

A roll call of precinct workers was taken and practically all responded, it being plainly evident that the Democrats will have a strong organization in the city as

Republicans Close Campaign With Big County-Wide Rally

Senator Harding Delivers A Forceful Speech; Clark Also A Brilliant Talker

The Republican party of Scioto county closed their speaking campaign Friday evening with one of the greatest political demonstrations held in the city for over a decade. Thousands witnessed the big torchlight parade and hundreds heard the eloquent addresses made by Senator Warren G. Harding, one of Ohio's foremost citizens, and Hon. Hugo Clark, one of Maine's great orators, in Distel's hall.

The declaration of Senator Harding that he not only favored and preached an eight hour work day but practiced it in his business and that the Republican party stood ready to take up the matter of an eight hour work day when organized labor was ready to have legislation enacted, was received with tremendous applause.

His denunciation of the present administration in dealing with Mexico and other foreign policies was wildly applauded.

In an explanation of the Adamson bill or so-called eight hour bill he branded it as a measure to "fix wages" and declared that if it should be held constitutional that to be effective congress would have to be garbed with authority to compel men to work, thereby "destroying the power of unions."

A message to the young men who are to cast their first ballot was brought by Hon. Hugo Clark of Maine. "The great danger on the eve of election is apathy," he said, in urging all Republicans to vote. "We don't quite understand what the awful, stupendous consequences will be if things go wrong."

Before going to the hall, Senator Harding expressed his appreciation for the demonstration given in his honor to a large overflowed meeting which had gathered near the entrance to the hall. He urged all Republicans to stand by the ticket.

A serpentine line of flickering, smoking torches wound its way up Walla street, shortly after seven o'clock last night and halted on North Waller street, near the Norfolk and Western depot, where ranks were opened.

Speakers Given Heartly Welcome

With bands playing and men cheering and waving torches and red fire, the two distinguished guests of the evening, who arrived at the evening passenger train, were escorted along the line of march in automobiles, by the reception committee which was composed of Mayor H. H. Kaps, County Chairman John F. Eckhart, Secretary D. Willard Gustin, Philo Clark, Judge George M. Osborn, Judge John C. Milner, Judge A. T. Holcomb, Harry W. Miller, Dr. Frank H. Williams. The enthusiastic marchers cheering and yelling followed the automobiles.

First came the members of the Hughes-Bosner Club of the Whitaker-Glessner company, several hundred strong. They carried innumerable sheet steel signs upon which were printed anti-campaign slogans.

Then next came a long line of Republicans from the different precincts in the county carrying the banners and the 450 foot streamers that won unstinted praise in Columbus Monday evening at the Hughes demonstration.

Five bands were in the line of march. They were: The River City, the Portsmouth, the Buckeye, the Junior Order United American Mechanics and the Lewis brass band.

The reception committee and guests left the automobiles at the Walla street esplanade and entered the reviewing stand, where they watched the marchers swing past four abreast.

The streets were thronged with people who cheered and applauded.

In the division of marchers from the Whitaker-Glessner company there was a float. Overhead was a large sign, "The Democratic Party—We Got It." Beneath this were two small boys holding a goat. Senator Harding appeared this.

Arthur Fields led the steelworkers. He was costumed in the garb of "Colonial Days."

The parade was twenty minutes past the reviewing stand. That was quite a procession, said Senator Harding to Chairman John F. Eckhart, when the last division passed.

The party then went to Distel hall where the speeches were delivered.

Big Hall Filled By 7 O'clock

Early as seven o'clock the big hall was over half filled with people. By the time the speakers arrived, all of the seats were taken and a few moments later the hall was packed. All available standing space was occupied.

Judge John C. Milner, who was selected as chairman of the meeting, had started his salutatory remarks in a forceful and able manner, when the tone of the bands came back out to the hall, followed by a crowd of cheering, applauding Republicans. The demonstration outside lasted several minutes.

John F. Eckhart, chairman of the local executive committee, and D. Willard Gustin stated that they were highly pleased with the parade and the meeting.

Senator Warren G. Harding was accompanied to this city by Hon. Charles E. Hard, vice chairman of the Republican State Executive Committee, and his private secretary, Mr. Christian.

One of the features of the meeting at the hall was the splendid songs rendered by the Aeolian Quartet. Their humorous words and tuneful melody captivated everyone.

"It looks good to see you here this evening," declared Judge John C. Milner, chairman, upon saluting the huge assemblage that packed the hall. "It recalls old times. To my mind it begins to spell and it does spell a Republican victory in November."

"As a Republican, friends, I esteem it an honor and a pleasure to preside at this gathering. Such meetings indicate that we are thinking and realize the importance of the serious question in this hour that one hundred million people are engaged in which they will not only determine the problems of the past four years but will determine what the policies of the government will be for many years to come."

"I want to say that as Republicans, we think that it is worth fighting for and I predict," continued Judge Milner, "that before the Wednesday's sun rises in the eastern horizon, we will hear somebody say that the Grand Old Party has not been too proud to fight."

"One hundred and forty-two years ago we were a few straggling millions, scattered around the Atlantic sea coast, under the dominating rule of Great Britain. We had been a patron of the Majesty's rule of Britain. There was a stamp tax imposed then during times of peace. This stamp tax did not amount to but a few thousand pounds."

"Our forefathers considered that it was worth fighting for. They recognized that it was their inalienable right and they fought first and died fighting for seven long years. If George Washington, like our little secretary of war would have been too proud to fight, there would not have been any president today and a Newton D. Baker would have never been secretary of war in these United States," Judge Milner declared.

"Were we too proud to fight? Thirty years after we were six million people; most of us farmers. Our sails whitened the seas of the world. About this time Barbaria in North Africa disputed the rights of the sails and in the Mediterranean sea belied tribute for all. Every nation paid it."

"Some people at this time undoubtedly did not believe that it was worth fighting for but Thos. Jefferson thought that he was not too proud to fight. He equipped an army of 4,000 and it took a few months to put the Stars and Stripes on every land and sea beneath the sun. Thomas Jefferson, the Democrat, wasn't too proud to fight."

"The American nation resounded with respect around the globe. When one thinks of those days it makes your blood tingle."

"But friends, today patriotic Americans who look to Mexico to see the Stars and Stripes ragged and trampled in the blood of Americans, can only say that at an elderly age he is an American was greater than being a king. Not so today. Elbert Charles E. Hughes and there will come a day when to be an American is greater than being a king.

Says Pledges Were Made, Not Fulfilled

"Four years ago the Democratic party in their campaign pledged themselves to cheapen the cost of the necessities of life. I want to say that there is not a single article in the United States cheaper than it has been, except the American flag."

"This gathering reminds me of a meeting a good deal like the one we held several years ago in the old rink, when we listened to that grand old statesman, Senator Fry. Perhaps some of you remember it. Dr. P. J. Kline there might. One at that meeting can never forget the thrills when he related an incident to illustrate what a country's flag means and ought to mean to every citizen under its beneficent folds."

"It was a story about a British subject who had been carried away captive when Algeria was ravaging commerce. This British captive was taken into the interior and held a prisoner. Did the prime minister say: 'Come home.' No! The English fitted out a fleet and an army of ten thousand and sent this fleet across the sea and the army went across the sands and released this prisoner. Gentlemen, this is what the flag means to you and did to men like Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson and Abraham Lincoln and Benjamin Harrison and Grover Cleveland and William McKinley. But it has gotten to mean something else in the last three or four years."

"By the grace of God and the Republican party, when Charles Evans Hughes is elected, it is going to mean the same thing to you after the Fourth of March," the chairman continued.

"Four years ago the Democratic party platform pledged to the people of this country free tolls through the Panama canal and Hon. Woodrow Wilson in his campaign and in his speeches said that pledges were made to keep and not to catch votes as molasses catches flies. Less than eighteen months afterwards, we see him marching into congress and demanding the repeal of the Free trade to the American ships so that English manufacturers and every foreign country might go through on the same terms as the American ships. It was built by American money and by American genius and by American skill and defended by American guns."

"What excuse did President Wilson offer for his demands? Why he said that if congress did not pass the law, the government couldn't negotiate a certain treaty with a foreign nation. He hasn't told us yet what nation that was but it is an open secret that it was the bluff of Great Britain, who wanted their ships to go through the canal on the same terms as the Americans."

"Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson, Benjamin Harrison, Grover Cleveland would not have backed down from Great Britain for any other nation."

"In concluding with the keynote address of the evening, Chairman John C. Milner, fittingly introduced Hon. Hugo Clark, an able and eloquent speaker from the state of Maine, who came to Ohio to assist in the cause of Republicans."

Hon. Hugo Clark Is Introduced

"When a young boy some 35 years ago," said Mr. Clark after stepping to the platform, "William McKinley, your own able and distinguished statesman; the Hon. James G. Blaine and Hon. Thomas V. Reed were guests at the home of my parents for three days. During this time they made many speeches and I heard them all. Is it any wonder that I am a Republican after being steeped in that atmosphere of Republicanism."

"Before going any further I wish to say I have a message from the people of Maine to the people of Ohio. I carry this message personally to you, although you may have read published accounts of it; and that is the fact that we have changed the state of Maine back into the Republican column."

"Poets say that the ballot is a weapon as still as the snow flakes. I read in your papers a day or so ago where one or both of your ex-governors, who are Democrats, warned the young men to avoid and shun the Republican party. The Hamlin Hamlin, of our state, said he once heard Abraham Lincoln say: 'Young men, you should shun the Democratic party like a leper.'"

"Young men who are about to take a share of stock in a political party, can do no better than affiliate with the great Republican party. The fact is that it is shown that one-sixth of the voters are new participants in the election every four years. As it was wittily called by New York papers sometime ago, 'The Absolut Vote.' Whatever the name may be for them, if this one-sixth of the vote scattered throughout the union should act concertedly, it would control an election. It is to these young men that I desire to address."

"The Republican party was born in a spirit of beneficence," the speaker continued. "Its original object was to give better conditions to the black men. It is not necessary to go back to the civil war to prove the ease of the Republican party. To mention the civil war in my state the Democrats would be offended."

"It was the things that followed besides those that occurred during and before the civil war." The speaker named the reconstruction measure, the construction of the Pacific railroads, that opened the natural resources, the founding of land grant colleges, the management of the fiscal affairs, which "put the paper money on a basis with the best gold dollar made," the wiping out of the national debt, the establishment of the bureau of mines, the conservative measures and the protective tariff.

"Grant said that the protective tariff concerned the factories and farms. Until I came to your state, I never realized the importance of the saying of this great soldier: 'Never have I passed through such a splendid agricultural district.'"

"The Democratic party is always averse to the trend of events. When American troops were sent out in the Spanish-American war they attempted to halt them, but they went down under the influence of fact. When William McKinley and Mr. Day were drafting that wise treaty for the sovereignty of the Philippines, they attempted to arrest current events and to stem the impetuous tide. They went down under the influence of fact. Again when in the Great South, the Panama canal was being constructed, the Democrats undertook to blot out the negotiations that were on to acquire the right to dig across the isthmus. They went down under the influence of fact. When all the nations of the world had adopted a gold standard, William J. Bryan advocated the free and unlimited coming of silver in the ratio of 16 to 1. Again they went down under the influence of fact."

The speaker related a story about an Irishman who had mashed his finger. A fellow worker approached and inquired about the injury, noticing that he was cursing his thumb. "Strike your thumb," asked the fellow worker. "Yes," replied the Irishman. "Driving nails?" queried the worker. The worker then volunteered to demonstrate a new way to drive nails without injury to thumbs and said that both hands should be taken. "That is what the Republican party intends to do," declared Mr. Clark. "They are going to take both hands and smite the nail."

While at a New York church recently, the speaker said that he conversed with the minister relative to politics. This minister advanced a motto, which is now being used in political speeches: "By their fruits, ye shall know them." The speaker said that it recommended the application to the Republican party.

"The great danger on this eve of the election," continued Mr. Clark, "is apathy. We don't quite understand what the awful, stupendous consequences will be if things go wrong. We are sometimes lulled by false security."

"Sometimes ago there were two travelers in the mountains of Kentucky. It was near dusk and they had lost their way. They had walked a great distance and at last saw a light. They advanced and found that it was a settler's cabin. They knocked upon the door and they were admitted. He explained that they had poor accommodations for travelers but gave them a supper of pork and hominy."

"After supper the family adjourned to the bed room. Now this family was composed of the man and his wife and eight children, ranging in age from two years to eighteen and twenty years. There was only one bed in the room."

"After a while the mother took the two youngest and put them to bed. After they had gotten to sleep the mother took them out of bed and put them on the floor. The next two were then put to bed and so on until all of the children were asleep on the floor."

"They retired to the next room and left the travelers to go to bed. The next morning the travelers found themselves on the floor with the children and the man and his wife in the bed."

"Now don't lose the application of that story," implored Mr. Clark after the laughter had subsided.

To illustrate his plea to the American people to support the Republican doctrine, the speaker er related a story, which he had found after a diligent search. It was about a country which had been stricken with a drought, pestilence and ruin were on all sides. Great rivers ebbed under the scorching suns and disappeared; fertile valleys became the burial grounds of animals.

Upon the banks of a stream stood a tigress with two young; gaunt from long days of fasting and worn by the heat of the sun. Bleared, blood splashed eyes rove restlessly about in search of food for her young.

A young man named Buda happened upon the scene and watched the frantic efforts of the animal mother to get sustenance for herself and young. Out of pity, the young man rushed out and sacrificed himself to save the young.

"The story ended," Mr. Clark said, "by this sentence, 'Thus was the Master's large heart years ago.'"

Under the stress of war the men and women in Europe were compelled to make greater efforts for a living, while in America the people were unconcerned. Through the unusual situation in Europe a greater industrial efficiency has been wrought, with which the Americans will have to compete after the war. "There is only one way to meet the onslaught of competition," he argued, "and that is the restoration of the tariff of the days of McKinley and Dingley."

In concluding, the speaker made an able plea in behalf of a protective tariff.

Senator Harding Given Great Ovation

Introduced as the foremost son and statesman of Ohio, Hon. Warren G. Harding, the temporary chairman of the Republican national convention at Chicago last summer; the author of the greatest Republican keynote speech ever delivered; and one of the ablest orators and thinkers of the day, was received with a great ovation that lasted several seconds. Cheers and shouts and applause resounded through the building. When the expression of approval had subsided the distinguished Ohioan advanced and began his address in his forceful, able and distinctly serious manner.

"You will have to bear with me for a moment. I have been speaking quite frequently and my voice," he said with a quaint smile, "is momentarily like Mr. Wilson's foreign policy. It is a little weak. In a little while my voice and the president's foreign policy will both be clearer."

"I am interested in Mr. Clark's address as I had the satisfaction of helping out in the election in September. I am glad that Mr. Clark is now returning the compliment. We hope to tell him what Maine's message was in September; Ohio will send Maine a similar message on November 7."

"There has been a good deal of Democratic progress in the campaign which we have never had experience with before. The Republican party is out of power, in a national sense, and therefore is the criticising and fault finding party."

"I was riding on a train out in the state of Montana a few weeks ago and while contemplating the different phases of the campaign, I noticed a gentleman sitting across the aisle and believed him to be a minister of the gospel. I wanted to find a thought in the Bible and I approached him. My guess was correct. He was a minister."

"I took the Holy Book and turned to the ten commandments. I suppose some of you wish to know how I did it, but I did nevertheless. When I turned to the ten commandments I discovered with satisfaction a corroboration of the thought that had been running in my mind but I had never before taken trouble to verify. In these commandments I found but one positive charge, 'Honor thy father and thy mother if thy days be long.' Eight others said, 'Thou shalt not.'"

"After reading I found in this the negative basis of the Wilson policies. I would start out with the simple, 'Honor thy country and thy flag.' It states positively that one is to hold everlastingly sacred the rights of American citizenship. 'Thou shalt not sacrifice American lives and American property by waiting and watching over the face of the earth; 'Thou shalt not everlastingly monkey with the tariff; 'Thou shalt not imperiously meddle with the affairs of the nations of the earth.'"

"So I might run on a great length in pleading the Republican attributes."

"Hold everlastingly sacred the rights of American citizenship. I want to tell you a story. Some three years ago a young man in my town accepted employment in Mexico and he was getting along famously; receiving promotions now and then. During the early part of summer his mother, who was a widow, became greatly worried over the reports of murder and assassination and importuned with the young man to return and he yielded and came home."

"Not long after that, he was seized with a desire to return and grew ambitious for his work in Mexico. Friends sought to dissuade him but his ambition overcame the influences of his friends. Five weeks later he stepped into an office of a friend of mine and said that he had come to say goodbye. 'I am going back to Mexico.'"

"He was told that the situation was serious but he said: 'Colonel, I am going back to Mexico in a different way. I do not consider it a sacrifice. I have surrendered my allegiance to the United States and have become a subject of Great Britain.'"

"What do you think of that? A young American wishing to go one hundred miles across the border and in order to be protected, has to take an oath of allegiance to Great Britain. He could have just as well taken an oath of allegiance to Germany because Mexicans do not kill German and English subjects."

Did Not Raise Son To Be A Soldier

"I know this American mother did not raise her son to be a soldier. I know that one American soldier's life is worth a hundred Mexican greasers. I know that no American mother raised her son to forsake his birthright of allegiance under these Stars and Stripes."

"Nor he would not have had to go this, if Charles Evans Hughes had been president of these United States. That all comes about by the miserable foreign policy in Mexico where American rights and American lives and property sacrificed by this impertinent meddling."

"They tell you that Woodrow Wilson kept us out of war and that you must not swap horses while crossing the stream. Well, if he kept us out of war, we aren't crossing the stream. Even if we were crossing a stream—I am not a horse trader—I think that every man would not give much for a horse if he turned in the shafts and started up stream the first chance he got. Well, I would trade him off at the first opportunity I would get."

"Mr. Bryan sailed across the horizon of Ohio a week or ten days ago, asking us to support the president because he kept us out of war. Why didn't Mr. Bryan support the president himself?"

"Mr. Bryan was secretary of state and he perhaps knew more about the Wilson foreign policy than anyone and he was in a position to give him the support. He quit, resigning in a crisis when he had better stayed and supported the president and been a good example."

"He kept us out of war? Mr. Wilson is not entitled to our support for keeping us out of war because he did not keep us out. Judge Advocate General has announced that we are in a lawful act of war in Mexico."

"The reason for this decision is because the army is in Mexico and the American soldiers would be held for murder when Mexican lives are taken. Legally we are at war but it is not a constitutional war. There is only one in this country authorized to declare war and that is congress. If you want to thank anyone for keeping you out of war, you can thank the senate and the house; you can thank Mr. Kearns and thank me for I can tell you that it had not been in the mind of congress or was it intended or thought of to declare war against any nation on the face of the earth."

President Wilson's attitude toward the president of the defunct Mexico was assailed by the speaker, who said that as the president refused to recognize Huerta because he had "bloody hands," Huerta killed one man and yet the president would take up Carranza who had killed thousands and would have been glad to take up with Villa, who has slain tens of thousands.

Through the president's meddling, the speaker said, a state of anarchy and unspeakable rapine and sacrifice of American lives and property resulted, which bred contempt and hatred for Americans in Mexico.

Is Recalled

The first incident of the Mexican troubles, he said, was when a portion of the American fleet was sent to Tampico Bay. A squad of sailors were arrested and imprisoned when they landed. Later they were released and apologies were made. "It was then that President Wilson determined to force Huerta to salute the flag," the speaker said, "yet Huerta had not been recognized as the de facto president of Mexico."

An army was sent into Mexico and while landing nineteen American soldiers were killed and several hundred Mexicans. The distinguished statesman said that this was followed by an order to withdraw the American battleships to a ten mile limit. The admiral in charge asked to have the orders repeated, fearing that there had been a mistake.

assassination, they found protection not on American ships but on the warships of England and Germany.

"Villa, the beneficent coddler of the factional administration, wanted to see if there was a possible resentment. So he sent a force across the border into Columbus, N. M. He surprised the garrison and killed many and looted homes and went back.

"President Wilson sent an army by land to capture Villa. One day Pershing's column was seeking to capture Villa and a portion of the Tenth Cavalry, which was composed of brave black soldiers, as brave as any defenders of the American flag, encountered a force of Carranzistas and the officers speaking as our Allies, asked what direction they traveled. The officers in the Pershing detachment explained that they were westward bound. The Carranzista officers, speaking as our Allies in Mexico, said that the only course for the American soldiers was northward toward the border. Our officers, like a true American, would, said that their orders were to pursue Villa and their course was westward, and marched on. Then from the ambush, the machine guns blazed and thirty of these brave boys fell and to this day, the Wilson administration has not asked for an apology or reparation from our Allies in Mexico.

Republicans Not Asking For War

"Now the Republican party is not asking for a war with Mexico. The only thing they ask is a firm assertion of American rights. President Wilson should have gone to Huerta and said: 'Now, Huerta, we recognize you. We are sorry for your trouble. You are to protect American lives. If you don't, we will tend to it.' All we ask is the protection of American lives and rights which are on the border or at home or on the high seas beneath every clime. That protection is the best guarantee of peace there is in the world."

In discussing the present administration's foreign policy toward the European countries, Senator Harding told of a political speech that was delivered a few weeks ago by a prominent Ohioan. During the speech a distinguished looking gentleman interrupted and asked what nation the president had kept us out of war with, and the speaker said that it was rather an indefinite question. The gentleman then named all of the countries and to each, the speaker said that "I do not believe so." Finally, the gentleman asked what country it was he had reference to and the speaker said: "I would rather not be interrupted any more until I finish my speech."

Concerning the trouble with Germany over the submarine question, Senator Harding said that President Wilson had come into congress with a resolution warning Americans to remain off of boats belonging to belligerent countries. At this time, he said that Senator Thomas Gore, Oklahoma, delivered a speech in which he said that had an "apprehension that we were speeding headlong into war," the speaker declared.

"This hasn't been denied to this day. I take it from the Congressional Record. I am not real sure," declared the speaker, "but what the Kaiser kept us out of war, and not the president."

"It is not such a wonderful thing if he had kept us out of war. Other presidents, Republican, Democratic, Federalist and Whig have served while foreign wars raged and they never involved this country. There is a nation who is our enemy or at least one whom has a resentment against the United States. I refer to Japan. I know of a president who carries a chip on his shoulder and shows his teeth when he grins that kept us out of war. He intervened and brought peace between Russia and Japan."

Says Lincoln Could Have Kept Us Out of War

"Abraham Lincoln could have kept us out of war in 1861. All he would have had to do was to leave all of the Southern states go away. That's all. Ever think of it? The North had ample space for an Empire within itself. Texas alone is as large as the German Empire. We had everything we wanted. Abraham Lincoln, that great sorrowing American, whose blood poured from his pores, said save the country at all costs. He was not too proud to fight and fought."

"Woodrow Wilson could keep us out of war, if Japan would ask for California. Give it to them. That's all. But listen, we are not that flabby yet in the United States of America. We have peace and want peace, but let's have peace with honor."

"America is enjoying the greatest prosperity recorded in its history," the speaker said, and then added that explanations of all sorts had been given for the cause.

He told of a gentleman who stated before the United States senate that the direct cause of the prosperity in America was due to the establishment of the Federal Reserve Banks in August, 1914. The only criticism that Mr. Harding offered to the suggestion was that the Federal Reserve Banks were not established until November of the same year.

"The only explanation of the prosperity is that it is the reflex of the European war. It is nothing else in the world and we are reveling in it and are intoxicated and we must be a little mindful of the morning of Remorse that most certainly will come."

Mr. Harding asked the men of the local steel plant to remember the message given them by E. E. Fieger, general manager of the Whitaker-Glessner Company, a few evenings ago, in which he said that under the Underwood tariff, not a pound of steel was produced in the month of December, 1914.

The speech made at Cincinnati a few days ago by the president was referred to by the speaker. He said that the president was quoted as saying that he could see no menace from the European countries after the war closed. The stand taken by the president was assailed by Mr. Harding, who pictured the conditions that followed the close of the Napoleonic wars of 1812-14. During this war, young industries sprang into life. When the reconstruction and rehabilitation period came it was fraught with embargoes.

Paragraph of History Read By Speaker

A paragraph taken from the third volume of the History of the American People, which was written by President Wilson, was read by Mr. Harding to show the ideas held by Wilson while a student and historian. The paragraph is:

"Peace changed the face of trade. English merchants feared their goods once again into the American ports, so long shut against them by embargoes and war. It was manifestly injurious to every young industry that a flood of English imports should continue to pour into the country at the open gate. The remedy was a protective tariff."

"This was taken from the third volume of Woodrow Wilson's History of the American People," declared Mr. Harding. Which would you prefer, Wilson as a student and a historian, or Wilson as a President?

"The war prosperity," Mr. Harding said, was costing the American people a vast sum. The European gold, is pouring into this country, he said at the rate of 2½ billions a year, while the increased cost of living amounted to eight billion dollars per annum. The gold supply of the world is in America. Some day it might have to be fought for," he said.

"Two methods in which the European countries could peacefully acquire a portion of the gold supply back, were named by Senator Harding. One was to sell securities, and the other to sell the manufactured products. For the latter America could be protected through a Republican tariff," he added.

The efficiency of the Industrial plants of Europe has been doubled," he asserted.

"The collection of duty charges at the port of entry under the operation of a protective tariff would save the American markets from a flood of European products. This money acquired is used to pay the operating expenses of the government and to finance big improvements."

"Through the operation of the protective tariff," he said, "the United States had been able to pay off the national debts and build the Panama canal from the odd cents in Uncle Sam's trouser pockets."

"Criticism offered against Protective Tariff, was that it favored special privileges, and that the burden rested upon the masses." He ridiculed the idea and said that the "privileged fellow" was always on the outside."

Was a Play Upon Popular Prejudices

He told of an assertion made that an income of $50,000 a year could not honestly be made. This, he said was done to play "upon popular prejudices." Very few people make such sums, he said. He cited as an example Mary Pickford, a moving picture star, who is said to receive a million and a half for two year's work. "They can't lay that to protective tariff."

Charlie Chaplin, he said received a salary of $700,000 a year and added that he would not "give a plugged nickel to see him." This amount, he said was more than the total salaries of the members of the United States senate.

High tribute to the business ability of Henry Ford was paid by Mr. Harding, who said that he made a "rattling good car" but he said, "I pity his political sense in 1916."

"Under the Democratic tariff for revenue, Mr. Harding said that the people were promised cheaper prices. He said he had a suit made and the tailor asked the same price for it as was charged before the ascendancy to power of the present administration. In questioning the tailor, he said that it was admitted that woollens was $1.90 cheaper but the tailor was getting the extra profit. By this method, he said the American people paid the same for the article the American industries failed to get the orders and the foreign producers got the money.

Concerning the Adamson Bill, or so-called Eight Hour Bill, Senator Harding said that he was an advocate of the Eight Hour Work Day. "I am a believer of the eight hour day myself and not only do I believe in it, but I practice it in my business. The boys in my printing office up at Marion belong to a union and have an eight hour work day and they get a rate for overtime."

"I wish to say that the Adamson Bill or the so-called Eight Hour Law is not an eight hour day bill at all. It does not give an eight hour work day. All the Adamson Bill gives is ten hours pay for eight hours work, making it a wage law."

In my judgment, the Adamson Bill is of doubtful constitutionality, and somebody, cunning enough saw to it that it goes into effect January 1, 1917, so that the constitutionality could not be tested before the election. Honestly, I am afraid that organized labor has been handed a great lemon and I will tell you why."

"Suppose that the thing stands as it is, namely giving congress the right to fix wages and I challenge anybody to dispute this. Suppose that it stands. If congress is given the power to fix the wages it naturally follows that congress will have to be authorized to compel the men to work. Get this. The president limited it in one of his recommendations when he asked for power to draft the men into the service of the U. S. army. If congress fixes the wages and compels the men to work, what has become of the unions? Their right to contract as a union is gone and the right to strike is gone. We are industrial slaves instead of the boasted new American Industrial Freedom.

"Two elements enter into the enactment of an eight hour work day, Mr. Harding said. They are: For the benefit of Public Health and Public Safety."

"Organized labor for thirty years has fought the legislation of the eight hour day, Mr. Harding said. A paragraph from the proceedings of a convention of the American Federation of Labor held at San Francisco, was read. In this the legislative committee recommended that the eight hour day be secured through the organizations and not by legislation."

The support of the Republicans was asked for Governor Frank B. Willis and the state officers, Congressman Charles C. Kearns and Myron T. Herrick.

The hearing of Floyd Bowman and Clay Adams, who are charged in the mayors court with stealing suit cases from the N. & W. depot, has been continued until Monday.

A plain drunk, giving the name of Roy Parker, was fined $5, Saturday. James Adair, an aged soldier, who was given lodging over night, was released with the advice to "keep moving."

WHO SAID THIS?

"The usual standard of the laborer in our day is to give as little as he may for his wages."

"The class formed by the labor organizations and leaders is a formidable enemy to equality and betterment of opportunity."

"I am a fierce partisan of the open shop."

"Labor Unions drag the highest man to the level of the lowest."

"The Chinese were more to be desired as workmen than most of the coarse crew that came crowding in at the eastern ports."

It was WOODROW WILSON, now President of the United States, but not then in politics. It was what he thought and taught for years, not what he wanted others to think he thought.

Who Said This?

"Some regard organized labor as a source of strife and menace of difficulty. I regard it as a fine opportunity for the improving of the condition of the working man. The mission of labor organizations is one of the finest that any association of men could guard."

It was CHARLES E. HUGHES, not then seeking office.

Who Said This?

"He was the greatest friend of labor laws that ever occupied the Governor's chair." "He signed 56 labor laws, including among them the best ever enacted in this or any other state." "Of 162 labor laws enacted in this state since 1777, one-third, exceeding in quality all the others, have been enacted and signed during Governor Hughes' term." "With such a record it is easy to believe that human rights will have a steadfast and sympathetic upholder."

It was the "Legislative Labor News," Union Labor's official organ, speaking of CHARLES E. HUGHES, Governor of New York, after he had retired from politics.

Use Newbro's Herpicide IN TIME AND YOU WILL NEVER NEED FALSE HAIR

Weaving false hair is a harmless deceit of which many ladies are guilty. These women are all objects for sympathy rather than criticism. Early neglect in the care of the scalp has caused the loss of so much hair that their personal appearance is sadly marred. To correct this defect they resort to artificial hair, hoping by so doing to hide the results of their earlier intention to the details of their toilet. These unfortunate are deceiving no one but themselves as no artificial hair no matter how costly, ever has the snap and lustre nor can it be made to look as pretty and attractive as natural hair.

Most ladies would resent any imputation of personal carelessness and neglect. And yet very many permit their natural hair to become so dull, brittle and lustreless that it looks no better than that bought at the store. All this is as unfortunate as it is unnecessary. Hair that is unsightly or thin may usually be attributed to the destroying effects of Dandruff. This destructive formation shortly robs the hair of life, with the result that it finally loosens and drops out. There is a preparation, solid and guaranteed by all dealers, the intelligent use of which will kill the dandruff germ. It cleanses the scalp of all accumulations and makes the hair shine with the luster of life and beauty. That remedy is Newbro's Herpicide, the Original Germ-Remedy for Dandruff. In no way can you add more to your personal charm and attractiveness than by the use of this remarkable scalp and hair tonic.

On account of its astonishing merit and its delightful and exquisite odor, Herpicide finds users everywhere among all classes. It may be purchased in 50 cent and $1.00 sizes at all drug stores and toilet goods counters. Applications may be obtained at the better barber shops and hair dressing parlors, or silver to cover cost of packing and mailing. The Herpicide Co., Dept. S, Detroit, Mich., will send to any address a nice sample bottle of Herpicide and an interesting booklet on the care of the hair.

Ambition Is Realized

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 4.—The athletic ambition of Quarterback Zeiger of the University of Michigan football eleven at last has been realized.

For three years Zeiger has been trying for a place on the eleven. Two seasons ago he would have made the team if it were not for the fact that Michigan and Tommy Hughitt, one of the greatest quarterbacks in her history. Last season Zeiger slumped and "Runny" Roehm of Detroit beat him out. This year Sparks, the young quarterback from Jackson, Michigan, became the sensation. He sustained injuries to his legs before the Syracuse game, however, and Zeiger got his chance. The substitute quarterback scored both touchdowns against the Easterners and played such a remarkable game that he will probably be used often during the rest of the season.

Players Want McGraw Deposed As Manager

New York, Nov. 4.—Harry Hempstead, president of the New York Giants, will be forced to choose between John McGraw, his manager, and several of his star players before the Giants start on their spring training trip, according to inside information which has leaked out here.

Four of the players, according to the story as it stands now, will refuse to sign contracts for the coming season if McGraw is retained as manager.

The players still are smarting from remarks attributed to McGraw following the Giant-Brooklyn game, during which he left the field and after which he was quoted as saying the players "laid down" in Brooklyn so the Dodgers could win the pennant.

Buck Herzog, Giant infielder and former manager of the Reds, is the man said to be favored by the players to succeed McGraw.

SPORTLETS

Chicago, Nov. 4.—The Chicago National have signed a promising first baseman in Edward McGinnis, a young giant from Huston. McGinnis is 6 feet, two inches tall, weighs 180 pounds and bats and throws left handed. He is 19 years old.

Once in a while some Philadelphia baseball writer goes on the warpath and loses things up. From the Quaker City comes a report that a determined effort will be made this winter to oust John K. Tener as head of the National League.

Dan Johnson comes out with another red-hot statement and demands that Dave Fultz head of the Players' Fraternity, either show proof that any American league player was not paid his salary while injured in the discharge of his duties, or be branded as a liar and resign from office.

Cleveland, Nov. 4.—The Cleveland club of the American league has declined the invitation of the Chamber of Commerce of Natchez, Miss., to establish a spring training camp there. Natchez offered to build a club house for the players and promised every other convenience, but Robert Melroy, vice president of the club, said that the club was under contract to train at New Orleans until 1917.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 4.—With the starting today of the November drive for the football championship of the south, two contests expected to result in cutting down the list of contenders for the 1916 title were down for decision. Georgia met Auburn at Columbus, Georgia while Alabama and Swannoe clashed at Birmingham. These four games up to today had not yet been decided.

Georgia Tech, Vanderbilt and Tennessee, the three other leading teams meet opponents usually considered among the weaker section of which have no bearing on the southern title. Tech was to meet Tulane here; Vanderbilt and House, Polytechnic at Nashville and Tennessee and Chattanooga come together at Chattanooga.

Cleveland, Nov. 4.—Tris Speaker is wearing a wrist watch. He's back from a hunting trip in Canada. All the hunters wear 'em, said Tris today.

After nineteen years as a shoemaker, Hans Wagner is to be transferred to first base next spring. Hans ought to have had sense enough to know, when he first took up shoemaking, that this job wouldn't last.

Basket Ball Is Next Thing

The Portsmouth high school basketball players will begin their practice in the high school gym Monday afternoon. Prof. H. Gates Trout will coach the team this season. Coach Trout turned out a winner last season and expects to do the same this year. Julius Baerman is captain of the team this year.

Tris Is Wise Old Gink

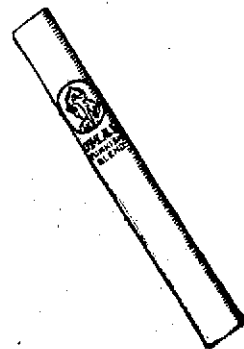

"I wouldn't purchase a ball club for all the money there is in the world—that is as long as I am able to play," declared Tris Speaker, who added: "I don't know where the money started. I was to succeed Leo Fohl here in Cleveland, but take it from me there is nothing to it. I expect to play for some years to come, but never will I manage a club."

A SEARCHLIGHT ON Hughes and Wilson Strength

—IN—

New York—Illinois—Indiana—Ohio—New Jersey

If we can catch the voters in the glare of the searchlight as they are shifting from one political camp to another, and count them, we can tell which camp will be found to have the heaviest battalions next Tuesday. So we have shot a ray of light at five big "doubtful" States where the paths from camp to camp are crowded with marchers, coming and going, and have made a count of those caught by its momentary gleam.

The Editors of THE LITERARY DIGEST wrote to 50,000 "Digest" subscribers in the States of New York, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, and New Jersey. They were asked to name the candidates they voted for in 1912 and for whom they would vote next Tuesday. More than 30,000 have responded.

In THE LITERARY DIGEST for November 4th the result of this canvass is shown. Several significant phases are apparent, and the article teems with interest.

WILSON'S RECORD SHOWS HE IS OPPOSED TO LABOR UNIONS
IT IS TIME THE LABORING MAN DID SOME TALL THINKING
READ THE RECORD OF CHAS. E. HUGHES ON THE UNION LABOR QUESTION

Mr. Hughes' position on labor, taken from Legislative Labor News of October 10, 1910:

GOV. HUGHES, GREATEST FRIEND OF LABOR

The Legislative Labor News, of New York, Oct. 10, 1910, had the following:

"Now that Governor Hughes has retired from politics and ascended to a place on the highest judicial tribunal in the world, the fact can be acknowledged without hurting anybody's political corns, that he was the greatest friend of labor laws that ever occupied the governor's chair at Albany. During his two terms he has signed 56 labor laws, including among them the best labor laws ever enacted in this or any other state. He also urged the enactment of labor laws in his message to the legislature, even going so far as to place the demand for a labor law in one of his messages to an extra session of the legislature."

"Only 182 labor laws have been enacted in this state since its erection in 1777—in 133 years. One-third of these, exceeding in quality all of the others, has been enacted and signed during Governor Hughes' term of three years and nine months."

"With such a record of approval and suggestion of progressive legislation in the interest of humanity to his credit, it is easy to believe that human rights will have a steadfast and sympathetic upholder in the justice of the Supreme Court of the United States."

INTEREST RATE IS REASONABLE

Some people say "I would buy a home but I have not enough to pay cash and the interest is so much." They let the interest scare them. The interest rate is six and seventy-six one-hundredths per cent. The renter pays this to his landlord and a profit besides.

SAVE THIS PROFIT FOR YOURSELF

"Home of Character" No. 123

This type of modern English bungalow house is sufficiently localized to be called American and is a most excellent illustration of the beauty of this material for exterior wall surfaces. The roof lines and the rather broad expanse of plaster surface, broken by the groups of windows, give an artistic effect that would be hard to attain by the use of any other material. The durability of the best brands of cement and the absolute waterproofing mixtures upon the market have made the use of cement or hollow tile or brick desirable material, both from a practical and an artistic viewpoint. For that reason we have shown many of our designs in cement.

The large living room with the dining room at one end and a broad single-nook at the side, is the dominant feature of this home. The hall, kitchen and pantry are conveniently arranged. Each bedroom has a large closet, and off of the hall is located a large linen closet, and at the further end of the hall a bathroom. Two bedrooms can be provided in the attic with sufficient storage space remaining. Basement extends under the entire house. A sleeping porch can be built over the dining room if desired.

No. 123, size 20x27 feet, cost $4000; can be built for from $3400 to $5000. The low figure being for frame construction, while the high figure should cover hollow tile construction with the best grade of material and construction throughout.

Any Times reader intending to build a home in the near future and desiring further information concerning this or any other "Home of Character" should take advantage of the special service Mr. Newson is prepared to render Times readers without charge to them. Always give the number of the home and mention the Times when making an inquiry, which should be addressed to John Henry Newson, "Homes of Character Dept., The Times."

The Frost Has Sent The Leaves Tumbling The Days Are Cool--The Nights Chilly--Winter Is Coming!

While some few people like the Winter season, others shudder to think of what it has in store for them!

One thing sure, and that is there will be less daylight than in Summer--the days are short, the nights are long.

Hence the light question should receive due consideration at this time of the year--preparedness is the forward!

From a personal standpoint we want to say that one of the chief questions that should be uppermost in your mind is regarding light--light for the home, light for the office, light for the factory. Solve the problem quickly and correctly by installing electric service.

Electric Service is the finest, the best, safest and most economical--no one can gainsay that, when comfort and convenience are taken into consideration.

Electricity requires no fussing or scratching around--it is always on the job, instantaneous and economical. No "fooling around" to get it ready for action. Electricity is the healthiest light on earth. It does not draw dirt--one big point in its favor. Then there is no flicker--it radiates with uniformity and is as near like sunlight as human ingenuity can devise.

You deserve the best in your home. No home is complete--it is of a truth, sadly deficient in its best and most necessary appointment when it lacks electric service.

If you own a home, you owe it to your good wife to give her what she deserves and desires--electric service, and you are under no less obligation to her if you rent a home.

Yours to serve,

THE BROTHERHOOD AT ALL SAINTS

That was a most interesting session we held last Sunday morning. The meeting tomorrow promises to be just as interesting. We are still discussing the various schools of thought in the church and hope to finish this part of our work tomorrow. Don't miss this meeting. All Saints' Brotherhood is a Bible Class for men run on unique lines and differing in many respects from the average class of this nature. You will enjoy meeting with us and we will be glad to have you. The title Brotherhood stands for all that it implies. Come to the church at the corner of Fourth and Court streets tomorrow, at 9 a. m. The class is taught by the rector of All Saints' parish and is open to all adult men. The class room is opposite the Parish House on Fourth street.

ALL SAINTS AND ALL SOULS

At the evening service at All Saints' church the rector will deliver an address on "All Saints and All Souls." The sermon will deal with the observance of the feast appointed in connection with the commemoration of the faithful departed. All professing Christians, and even those who make no profession of Christianity, are interested in the question, "What happens to the dead?" Many people have no ideas on the subject, and many hold erroneous opinions. You will be interested in this sermon and what is more, you will be cheered and comforted. You may be surprised to hear that most of the teaching which is given by preachers and teachers on this subject is absolutely contrary to the teaching of Holy Scripture and at variance with the oldest and most respectable traditions of the Christian church. Make up your mind to hear this sermon. You will find the church at the corner of Fourth and Court streets. Leave the street car at Chillicothe and walk two squares west on Fourth to Court, or at Second and Court streets and walk two squares north to the church.

MATTHEW F. MERRIMAN

Hughes, The People's Champion!

President Wilson stands for free trade and the Underwood tariff which for the first ten months of his administration, and until the great war in Europe, threw thousands of men out of employment, closed factories and mills, filled sidings with empty cars and established the dreaded soup houses. Our own steel plant, shoe factories and railroad terminals felt the blight of this democratic tariff and reduced the hours of employment and laid men off.

The democratic platform pledged Americans security in their lives and property throughout the world, and Mr. Wilson in lofty words said that the United States must use every means she could in friendship employ to protect the lives of citizens and property in Mexico. And he said the United States has professed to be the champion of the rights of the small and helpless states, and she must make that profession good. What false pretense lies in these words!

It was not friendly protection to allow our citizens to have their throats cut and their homes burned. Our citizens at Tampico, while in peril, were deserted by our ships leaving them to be rescued by German and English ships.

Mr. Wilson did not champion the cause of Mexico when he declined to recognize the established head of Mexico, but intermeddled in her affairs and recognized Villa, then Carranza and allowed blood, anarchy and ruin to reign in helpless Mexico. There is no firm purpose in Mr. Wilson's policy.

While our people were being massacred and outraged, Mr. Bryan merely advised them to get out. There was none of that love and concern for the people that he and Mr. Wilson boast, and during those horrible months not a finger was raised in their protection.

Mr. Hughes stands for the Republican principle of protection to American labor and American industries. This policy was adopted by the first Republican convention and vitalized by fifty years of honorable administration of public affairs which placed labor on a plane of dignity, made capital secure in its investment and brought a prosperity to the country that has astonished the world.

Mr. Hughes, without thought of aggression, stands for adequate preparedness to assure security and safeguard peace, and a preparedness that will guard us against an industrial invasion after the war.

Mr. Hughes stands for restoring order and maintaining peace in Mexico, with the promise to her oppressed people of relieving their distress and extending our friendship, and the assurance to our own people, on the border and in Mexico, of absolute protection in their lives, liberty and property.

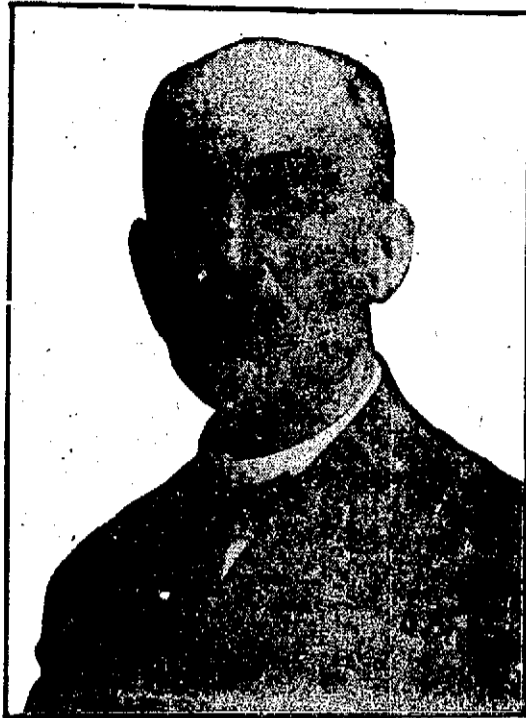

Mr. Hughes stands for a foreign policy that will invite respect by a firm insistence on American rights; for an impartial neutrality and international tribunal to maintain peace, and for the principle of arbitration that has liberated and protected labor in industrial disputes.

Mr. Hughes is a broad upstanding American, with large and trained ability, and possesses habits of straightforward thinking which means that his words will be translated into facts. His past career guarantees that what he says before election will be made good by his acts after the election.

True Americanism Will Elect Hughes

“A CROSS the road we are to travel this next four years, even though we start right and move with prudence and courage, serious hazards are thrown like the breaks in a roadway made by a torrential rain. These all rise out of the war torrent which has overwhelmed Europe.”

WHEN this war began over a million American working men were seeking vainly for employment. When the war ends and the developed energies of a new Europe are thrown into commercial production, our nation will face a competition such as it never knew.”

“ONE of two things must happen—either millions of men will be seeking work in vain or else there must be thought out in advance the problem of commercial organization as France and England and Germany are seeking to think out the problem today.”

“EVERY one of these nations is preparing to defend its own market by a protective tariff.”

“IF we are to save our laboring men from a catastrophe we must plan a tariff protection along sound, just and economic lines. To this endeavor I pledge myself and the men who are to be my colleagues.”

HUMANITY -- AND YOUR VOTE

BY HENRY FORD

I N this great crisis of our country I am more interested in measures than in men, I am not interested in parties at all. But measures can only be put into force through the men in office. We must therefore make a choice of the man and men who will put the measures in force. In the first place we should guard against Wall Street influences again securing the control of our Government. They have been rooted out during the last four years, and they are working hard to get back.

The eight-hour day should be extended to all our industries where possible. Women should be given the rights which in justice belong to them. For years the argument has had some force with me that women should be discouraged from working in factories and stores, and hence, they have been discriminated against in wages, but I have slowly come to the settled conviction that this practice has been unfair, because equal work deserves equal pay. Hence, all women in our employment who do equal work shall receive equal pay.

I regard war as the greatest curse of mankind—that it has done more to retard the progress of the race and its material well-being than any other single cause. We want to see war abolished and we believe it can be done, and we must try to choose the man for the head of our Nation who will do the most for these ends.

ALTHOUGH NOMINALLY A REPUBLICAN ALL MY LIFE, I AM FOR WILSON, AND URGE MY FELLOW CITIZENS TO STAND FOR HIM, BECAUSE OF HIS POSITION ON THESE AND OTHER GREAT QUESTIONS, BECAUSE HE HAS KEPT US OUT OF WAR AND HAS DONE MUCH TO BRING ABOUT THE REMARKABLE PROSPERITY WHICH WE ENJOY, AND BECAUSE WALL STREET IS AGAINST HIM.

He is entitled to be rewarded for his great service to mankind, and the only way we can reward him is by giving him the opportunity to be of still greater service.

The greatest reward for doing a good thing is the privilege to do more, that is why Mr. Wilson wants to be re-elected; in other words, to be paid for what he has done by the privilege of doing more.

I have much admiration for Mr. Hughes personally, but he is surrounded, influenced and advised by nearly all the evil influences of selfishness and greed which I feel have retarded our progress for so long. I fear his election would restore the old crowd to power and put back the cause of humanity for fifty years.

In my mind, the most undesirable citizen in the world is the man who will buy another man's vote, and the next most undesirable is the man who will sell his vote—because he not only injures himself and his family, but the community at large.

I AM FOR MR. WILSON BECAUSE WITH A WORLD AT WAR HE HAS KEPT US OUT OF WAR. ALL OTHER GREAT NATIONS ARE BEING CONSUMED AND DESTROYED BUT WE HAVE PEACE WITH HONOR, AND OUR BOYS ARE AT HOME. SPECIAL INTERESTS ARE DEMANDING WAR AND THE PRESIDENT IS BEING CRITICIZED WITH MANY WORDS, BUT STRIPPED OF ALL UNNECESSARY WORDS THEIR REAL COMPLAINT IS THAT HE HAS NOT PLUNGED THE COUNTRY INTO WAR FOR THEIR PROFIT.

There has been much talk of the attitude of the so-called "hyphenates." To my mind these are merely sentimental Americans, men and women, who, like myself, have a feeling of love for the place of their birth. My observation has shown that among the best of Americans are these citizens.

To all these let me say: I know from many conversations with Mr. Wilson his absolute neutrality among all the nations at war, his intense devotion to peace, his deep desire to serve all the people of all those countries impartially. Any single act apparently against any one of these countries, is made only in pursuance of his duty as President of the United States and his duty to mankind.

I know positively he bears no ill will to Germany or to England, or France, or Austria, or any of those countries at war, but he does understand and is opposing that invisible government, that unseen hand which caused this war. I believe those same selfish forces that caused the war are opposing the President's re-election.

I AM FOR WILSON because he caused to be passed a large number of wise and humane laws, most of which had been promised by the politicians of both parties for many years without fulfillment.

No one class has been favored, no one disregarded. He has served the United States as a whole.

Among these laws are:

THE FEDERAL RESERVE LAW, which wrested from Wall Street its monopoly of finance, released credit, forbade usury and dispelled the fear of money panics which hung over every business. It has done away with the concentration of money in the hands of a few men in Wall Street, and distributed it among twelve Government-controlled reserve banks throughout the country. The passage of this law alone, from the viewpoint of the honest business man, should entitle Woodrow Wilson to re-election.

THE EIGHT-HOUR LAW—The eight-hour day issue has suddenly sprung into great prominence.

I say to you from experience and not from guess work, that the eight-hour day will help both employers and employees. We have had the eight-hour day in force in the Ford factory for nearly three years and it has been a complete success from every point of view.

I AM FOR WILSON because he favors the eight-hour day. The President has declared that he is in favor of the eight-hour day in all kinds of business, except a few in which it is impracticable, as for instance, farming.

The President has been criticised for the passage of the Adamson eight-hour law, which applies to railroads, but that law averted the wholesale ruin which a universal railway strike would have brought. A strike had been ordered. It meant the closing of factories, violence and the enforced idleness of millions of persons and the loss of millions of dollars. Neither side to the struggle took into consideration the one hundred million people who would have to bear the burden. Every business man in the country was trembling with fear. The President acted as the representative of all the people and the strike was prevented and the principle of an eight-hour day endorsed. Seventy-four Republican Congressmen voted for the bill and no word of protest came from the Republican candidate, although the law was under consideration for several days.

Mr. Wilson showed great wisdom and courage in preventing this strike, which would have paralyzed the nation.

The Commission which has been appointed to study the effect of this law will, I hope, report that with increased efficiency the railroads will not need higher rates. But in any case this action is, I believe and hope, the first step towards the government ownership and operation of railroads.

THE RURAL CREDITS LAW, under which the farmer is enabled to borrow long time loans on small payments, at low rates of interest; and it promises an annual saving of $150,000,000 to farmers who were formerly the hopeless victims of loan sharks. These rural credit banks are now being established by the Commission in various parts of the country.

THE CHILD LABOR LAW, which prevents employment of young children in factories and stops the coining of dividends out of the lives of little children. There is no factory and no institution that can possibly give any care equal to a mother's care.

A WISE WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION LAW, providing compensation to those injured while in the service of the government, which measure will lead to "safety first."

THE LAW CREATING THE NON-PARTISAN TARIFF COMMISSION which will go into effect very soon, and which has taken the tariff out of politics and placed it in the hands of a commission of different parties, so that tariffs can be altered as conditions change.

THE GOOD ROADS LAW, which provides $75,000,000 for improving highways throughout the United States under adequate safeguards, which will facilitate transportation. This will help the country feed the city.

The farmer will be greatly benefited by not being compelled to waste his energies on bad roads. Fruits and vegetables today are rotting on the farms from lack of good roads.

THE INCOME TAX LAW AND THE INHERITANCE TAX LAW, which readjust the burdens of taxation, compelling the wealthy to bear a fair share of the load which has hitherto rested all too heavily on the backs of the poor.

THE AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION LAW, which provides an annual appropriation for the direct education of the farmer, in order that the farms of the land may be worked with greater efficiency and upon a sound and scientific basis and produce larger crops for the benefit of all our people.

THE ALASKAN RAILWAY LAW, which provided a railroad built and operated by the government, and which has opened up the resources of that great territory in the interests of the PEOPLE, not for the benefit of the few.

THE FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION LAW, which creates a non-partisan Board to arbitrate commercial disputes, to prevent unfair competition and to stand as a barrier between the consumer and extortion.

THE GRAIN ANTI-GAMBLING LAW, which provides better grain storage facilities, and enables the farmer to obtain certificates on which loans may be secured. He is thus enabled to borrow on the products of his labor—and is not compelled to sell during unfavorable times.

THE SAFETY-AT-SEA LAW, through the passage of which ships now carry more life-saving equipment, and the general living conditions of sailors at sea have been improved.

THE COTTON FUTURES LAW, which prevents gambling in cotton in stock exchanges and establishes standards for cotton. I hope the President will find some way to pass a law to prevent all speculation in stocks.

THE CLAYTON ANTI-TRUST LAW, which does away with interlocking directorates, prevents railway looting, ends the abuse of the injunction, and declares the great truth that a "Man's labor is not a commodity but a part of his life."

THE ABOVE RECORD OF PROGRESSIVE LEGISLATION in the interest of all the people and not of the few, far exceeds any ever before known in our history.

THOMAS A. EDISON SAYS THAT PRESIDENT WILSON AND HIS COLLEAGUES IN CONGRESS, BOTH DEMOCRATS AND REPUBLICANS, HAVE ENACTED MORE LAWS FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE INDUSTRIOUS PEOPLE IN THE PAST THREE YEARS THAN THE REPUBLICAN PARTY HAS IN ALL THE TIME IT WAS IN POWER; and it is because of these laws and his leadership in the interest of all the people that the President is being fought by the special interests, by every master of Wall Street, every monopolist, every munition maker, every man with a special interest to serve. No business man should oppose Wilson because Wilson is the greatest friend honest business ever had in the White House.

GREAT PROSPERITY COVERS THE LAND AS NEVER BEFORE. LEGITIMATE ENTERPRISE IS ASSURED A PROPER REWARD. THERE ARE NO BREAD LINES, AND EVERYBODY IS EMPLOYED THAT WANTS TO BE. OUR PEOPLE ARE CONTENTED, PROSPEROUS AND HAPPY. WHY SHOULD WE MAKE A CHANGE?

In order to carry out his work President Wilson will need the co-operation of a Congress thoroughly in accord with his own far-seeing policy. It is our plain duty as voters to send back to Congress the right men, irrespective of party, to assist the President in the great tasks that face him.

November 8, 1895, Male Babies May Vote At This Election

Is there any male person in Scioto county who was born on the 8th day of November, 1895, and, if so, will he be entitled to vote at the election on November 7th, provided he is otherwise legally qualified? This question was asked J. F. Johnley, deputy clerk of the Board of Election, Friday. In answering, he held: "The constitutional provision is that a male person must be of the age of twenty-one years to be entitled to vote. "In calculating the age of persons, application must be made of the common law rule that no consideration will be given to a fraction of a day. "Thus if by the application of this rule it is determined that a person will be twenty-one years of age at any moment of a particular day, such person will, in legal contemplation, be for all purposes twenty-one years old for and during the whole of that day. "The weight of legal authority in this country is, that an infant at birth is twenty-one years of age on the first moment of the day next before the twenty-first anniversary of his birthday, and a male person who was born on the date above mentioned, and who is otherwise legally qualified as an elector, will be entitled to vote at the election next Tuesday.

INDIANA MAN HAD A DELICATE LIVER

Made Friends Think He Would Not Live, But Black-Draught Liver Medicine Brought Him Safely Through.

Loogootee, Ind.—Mr. Anthony Wilson, of this town, says: "I was born with a delicate liver, which caused a disordered stomach, and my growth was affected by a case of malarial fever. I spent considerable money for treatments, but without any permanent relief. I commenced using Theodor's Black-Draught at the age of 10, and continued until I was grown, and it cured me, and I consider it a rapid cure in a case like mine. The people around here said I would never live to be a man, but Theodor's Black-Draught fooled them all."

I am now 27 years of age, and don't have to use Black-Draught only during the change of seasons, to tone up my system. As for my liver trouble, it is gone for good. I have made many new friends for Theodor's Black-Draught, for it has merit to recommend it. Theodor's Black-Draught has been the standard household remedy for disorders of the liver, stomach and bowels for over 75 years. You run no risk in trying it for your troubles. I take this means to solicit your support in my candidacy for congress on the Democratic ticket for the Sixth Ohio congressional district, composed of the counties of Adams, Brown, Clermont, Pike, Highland and Scioto, and I ask for the support of all our Adams county people. Pleads Not Guilty To Stealing Hides

Walter Forsythe was arraigned in the mayor's court Saturday morning on a charge of stealing hides from an N. & W. box car, to which he pleaded not guilty. He was held to the grand jury in the sum of $200. Judge A. Z. Blair at once secured his release on bond. Homer Hammock, another East End young man, who was similarly charged, was released from custody by Mayor Kaps Saturday morning, as there was no evidence, he said, to connect him with the stealing. An older brother, John Hammock, was one of the five men bound over to the grand jury by the mayor since the stealing of the hides occurred. Young Hammock was advised by the mayor to spread the word for him through the East End that any persons who appeared before the grand jury or in common pleas court and testified falsely regarding their knowledge of the hide-stealing would be arrested for perjury and by him bound over to the grand jury.

"GUN MEN" HELD

Will Abbott and Joe Henderson, the two strangers, who, as they were about to be arrested near the Portsmouth Chemical works some days ago, dropped two new revolvers which have been identified as some of those stolen from the Rottenshausen hardware store recently, were bound over to the grand jury by Mayor Kaps Saturday, on charges of carrying concealed weapons. Their bonds were fixed at $200 each.

All efforts to get the two men to talk proved futile, they denying they had the revolvers, although at the time they were taken into custody by Sergeant John Smith and Patrolman Jack Leeds, they are reported to have begged earnestly to be allowed to go, saying "You can take the guns, let us catch this freight train."

It was pointed out to the pair by police officials that they were not charging them with the hardware store robbery, or even suspecting them of it, but unless they explained how they came into possession of the guns and tried to clear themselves, no other alternative remained but to hold them.

Henderson is an awkward and unsophisticated young man, who claims Pikeville, Ky., as his home.

Cox Sends Message To The Voters Of Scioto County

FORMER GOVERNOR OUTLINES POSITION ON STATE ISSUES

During the present campaign, former Governor Cox, who has been giving every day of his time to the State Committee, speaking in behalf of President Wilson, Senator Pomeroy, and the State and local candidates, has found it impossible to reach forty-three counties in the State. Among them in Scioto County.

Appreciative of the fact that the many readers of this paper and the friends of Governor Cox in the county would be disappointed without a message from him, we have arranged to have him make this address through the medium of these columns.

"I am thankful for the interest which has been shown in my candidacy by the people of this county. I appreciate the support that has been given me here in the past, and I am thankful for the assistance I know will be given here to my candidacy this year. It is a source of regret with me that time and physical conditions have made it impossible for me to visit Scioto County.

"Long before the beginning of the actual campaign I had served notice upon the State Committee that I would be at its service at all times to raise my voice in behalf of our splendid president, and do what I could to aid in winning for him the twenty-four electoral votes of this state.

"I also promised to preach the gospel of good government for Ohio in every county of the state. At the command of the State Committee I have been in a great many communities. They have had me making speeches in one day from Greenville on one side of the State to New Philadelphia on the other. I have gotten up before daylight in the morning, and been on the move making speeches at regular intervals until midnight.

"I have no complaint to make on this score. As long as God gives me the strength and ability to do this, I would feel recreant in my duty not to raise my voice in its utmost power to sing the those in the State House, because the administration has been such an admitted failure, and the affairs of the commonwealth have sunk to such low ebb, that even half the truth might be regarded by the conservative citizen as an exaggeration.

"You have not been hearing very much this year of the reputation of charges upon which the campaign seemed to hinge two years ago. Things were told you then which were not true, and you believed them. Candidate Willis said there was a deficit in the State Treasury of $4,800,000. As Governor he recaptured to me for $11,970,491.30 in cash. By voice and with his 'Little Red Book' he made charge of useless offices and commissions, saying they had been created by me, when as a matter of fact, most of them had come into affairs before Willis was in politics, and some of them even before he was born. He said he would restore the outside offices to the State House and he has purchased an eleven-story office building not large enough for all the offices, and paid for it with interest on the cash he said was not in the State Treasury. I am not criticizing the purchase of this building, but I am criticizing the bad faith and dishonesty that was practiced on the people. The present Governor as a candidate promised elimination of offices, and has increased the pay roll for officers, according to the State Auditor's report of money paid out, $675,000 a year. He promised increase under the compensation law, and not only has that promise been broken, but by inattention and reaction assistance has been lent to the Employers' Liability Insurance companies, who would destroy the law. I was condemned for having constructed what was termed a political machine. If I had one, it certainly did not work out very well! But in the face of that charge the assistant has proceeded by spoils distribution of such magnitude never before seen in the State, to build up a machine of his own, which has seen use in three preliminary campaigns. You were promised economy in State government, and in his first fiscal year Willis expended $19,695,902.33, which was a million and a quarter more than was spent in any year preceding him, and which was $19,801.88 more than was received from all sources. These figures are taken from the State Auditor's report, and remember that the Auditor of the state is the official bookkeeper of the state. Governor Willis took over the State Treasury with $11,970,491.30 in it, and at the end of his first fiscal year had reduced this surplus to $6,870,423.92. These figures are also being read to you from the official reports of the State Auditor and the State Treasurer. You were pledged the election of assessors, and then given a law which gave to boards of revision arbitrary powers, under which taxes were raised without reason and without notice. Even now you are being told that my election means restoration of the appointed assessors. I am still convinced of every principle by which I was actuated two years ago, but you are promised that the Democratic legislature, when elected, will take away the inequitable features of the present tax law, and will not disturb your right to elect your assessors in any way you see fit. And you know the Democrats in Ohio have a record of keeping their promises.

"Two years ago it was recognized that Ohio had advanced in every way. In the last two years the only advance has been in the cost of government.

"Under our administration came the enactment of the Compulsory Workmen's Compensation Law, which was so efficiently administered that in two years it had gained the support not only of employees, but employers as well. Attempts against it were made even under me, but every one of them was successfully resisted and overcome. We established the modern educational system, which gave to the boys and girls of the farm the opportunities they deserved. Recognition was given to our mothers in the enactment of the Mothers' Pension law. With this we gave the absolute guarantee to every mother in Ohio that no matter what circumstances may befall her in the tender youth of her children, she will not come to poverty, nor will her little ones be separated from her. We made an effort to close the door of the dark days of old prison methods in the State, and there was purchased the new penitentiary farm in Madison county, on which there has not been a single activity in two years. Under legislative enactment I sought out and brought into Ohio a successful financial expert, under whose direction was worked out the first budget financial system adopted by any state in America, and under this system in its first year we took away from the expenditures nearly a million dollars. In keeping with the idea of economy and efficiency which actuated the budget system, it was found that a reduction in the state's taxation could be made. A special session of the legislature in one day saved to the tax payers of this state $4,000,000.

"We passed eleven agricultural bills for the promotion of farm life. Connecting both the farm and school progressive ideas we adopted a modern highway system, built on co-operation between county, state, and federal government.

"I will not take the time nor the space to recite the numerous beneficial laws that were passed under the Cox administration. I must, however, remind you that special attention was given to the efficient and benevolent placement in the care of the state's unfortunate under the Board of Administration, which was established by Governor Harmon. We permitted no political interference with this board. Its conduct was continued free from the hand of the spoilsman with sympathetic treatment from the executive and legislative departments, until the present administration came into power.

"And now in this personal address to you, may I be pardoned for writing somewhat about myself in that it may explain the spirit of our legislative policies. It may help to a better understanding of our purposes, which will certainly account for the interest shown for certain legislation when I was Governor.

"First, I am engaged in business, and have been for many years. I am an employer of labor. I have built up two reasonably prosperous newspapers, with the assistance of my employees, many of whom have been with me since the beginning. I am interested, like other business men, in the continued prosperity of the state. The newspaper business, more than any other business, depends upon the prosperity of the people as a whole.

"I could not, from even a self-interest standpoint, desire such legislation as would in any manner interfere with the general prosperity of the people of the entire state. I believe I understand business methods, and while governor, business methods were employed in the conduct of the state's business, believing that the business of the state should be conducted upon the same general lines as the business of a private institution.

"I was for five years an employee myself, and I therefore understand the viewpoint of the employee. I began working for others when I was a child, and continued until I started into the newspaper business for myself. So I know the handicaps under which the employee labors; I am familiar with the obstacles in his way; I know the discouragements which he meets.

"I was aware of the status of the average employee when I became governor. So it was natural that I should have desired legislation in the interest of the employee, while not crippling the employer. I consider the workmen's compensation law as the very refinement of such legislation, and am proud that my name is now connected with the enactment and the execution of the law as we now have it upon the statute books.

"It was my good fortune, or misfortune, as you please—to be born poor. I knew from my youth the struggles of the masses of this country; I was acquainted with the trials which they have to face. I was aware of the fact that often a few dollars might save a family from being separated and the children sent to orphan asylums or to county institutions.

"So again it was natural that I should have a mother's pension law—a measure that would enable the courts of this state, after proper investigation, to make provision for the maintenance of worthy mothers who have children dependent upon them. Whatever the political fates may have in store for me, I shall rejoice always that I was once in position—as governor of the state—to aid in putting upon the statute books a law that is saving thousands of children from the degrading effects of a public institution.

"As a member of congress, and as an observer of the ways of politics, I observed the work of the lobbyist. So the first official act of our administration after reaching Columbus, was to insist upon an anti-lobby law, to prevent corrupt practices in legislative matters. The law was passed the first day I was governor, and it provided that all lobbyists should register with the secretary of state, and give the names of the interests for which they were lobbying. I believe the law actually prevented any attempt to bribe any member of the legislature. There was not a breath of scandal emanating from the state house.

"As a newspaperman I had had considerable dealing with prison scandals. That is, I knew something from my experience as a reporter and publisher of the manner in which it was a common practice to operate penal institutions. So I decided to investigate further into the matter, and to ascertain if something could be done for the unfortunate people who are incarcerated in the prisons, and at the same time help the state in handling the many problems pertaining to the so-called criminal class.

"After a thorough investigation the prison farm was purchased and plans were made for removing the prisoners from the old antiquated prison in Columbus. The prisoners were to raise their own food supplies, together with food supplies for the other state institutions, at small cost to the state and at great saving. It is a matter of public record that nothing has been done during the present administration to work out the splendid program of prison reform which we began.

"I was brought up on a farm. My earliest recollections are of the soil and its cultivation. It was not strange, therefore, that I should have understood many of the farmers problems and that I should have desired to do something for the solving of these troubles—to promote agriculture.

"I cannot here tell of the many laws passed under my administration helpful to the farmer, but they may easily be ascertained. The reformation of the state agriculture commission, the study of farm credits, the laws to prevent the transportation of diseased cattle, the encouragement of county experimental farms, and many other agriculture measures were enacted.

"It was the same with the schools of the state. I taught school at an early age, in a little one-room school house. My education was obtained at a country school and at a high school in a small city. So I was familiar, personally, with the needs of the schools of Ohio.

"I was not satisfied with my own information upon the subject. A school survey was made, and after the most patient care and with the help of the ablest educators of the nation, a new school code was prepared and passed by the legislature during my administration. Ohio now stands at the head of all other states in the matter of a rural school system. When I went into the governor's office, it was placed forty-first in the list of states as regards schools.

"During my administration there was a revaluation of all public utilities; a uniform accounting system by the utilities was inaugurated. It was also provided that no injunction should be issued against a rate order without investigation—this to prevent the utilities from obtaining an injunction and keeping it in the courts indefinitely.

"The budget system adopted for the state is still in use. We had the budget commissioner itemize appropriations so that money appropriated for food, for instance, could not be used for remodeling quarters for the officers. Our budget system is recognized by other progressive states, and the federal government is considering its adoption. It follows the line of the budgets made by private corporations in running their affairs.

"It is said that 'Cox had too many laws passed.' I certainly was instrumental in having many of them passed. But with one or two exceptions they have not been repealed, and they will not be repealed. The present administration may criticize the activity of the past administration all it desires; but it does not offer to repeal the splendid laws which we enacted. The two laws that were repealed, in part, by the present administration were not improved upon, as witness the present trouble the administration is having in executing the liquor law and the tax law.

"I believe that a state administration should be as active as the administration of a private corporation; that it should be as effective and efficient. We applied business principles to the state affairs, and we shall do so again elected—the same measure of industry will be demanded from employees, the same degree of efficiency will be insisted upon; the same attention will be paid to details, and the same effort will be made to get the government closer to the people. There will be the same long hours in the governor's office, persons with business to attend to will be accommodated, and the affairs of the state will be just as honestly administered." JAMES M. COX.

Men Who Fell 110 Feet "Doing Well" At Hospital

Peter Oakes, Thomas Sharkey and Frank Sharrow, the three Iroquois Indians who fell 110 feet into the Ohio river while working for the McClintic-Marshall Company on the C. & O. Northern bridge at Sciotoville Friday afternoon about two o'clock, spent a very good night at Hempstead hospital.

The trio, along with Thomas Logwood, formed a riveting gang, but Logwood at the time of the accident, happened to be on another part of the work and did not share the fate of his fellow workers. Oakes, Sharkey and Sharrow were on a scaffold three-quarters of the distance from the bank to the middle river pier. A 4-inch by 8-inch support, known as a "needle beam," broke and let the plank on which the men were standing, fall. They fell into four feet of water, the river being unusually low at this time.

A cry of alarm was given as the men fell and in a few seconds a number of fellow workers were busy in the water helping the men ashore. Bob Fisher, blacksmith, waded out and caught Sharkey, who had his arms clasped around a piece of the broken timber and was floating down stream. Oakes and Sharrow were brought ashore in the McClintic-Marshall Company launch.

Dr. J. F. York, the company physician, was called and he summoned Daehler's ambulance, who removed Oakes and Sharkey to the hospital. Sharrow was taken to the hospital in Dr. York's machine. At the hospital Dr. York assisted by Dr. W. W. Smith, made a hurried examination of the men's injuries. Oakes and Sharrow were more seriously injured than Sharkey, who suffered only a sprained back. He will be out in a few days. Oakes had three ribs broken. One rib is pressing against the lung and an operation will probably be necessary. Sharrow had his right arm broken, right ankle sprained, and sustained numerous lacerations and bruises about the head and face. His head must have struck a timber in the fall or the rock bottom of the river, as his head is badly swollen. It will be several days before he will be able to open his eyes.

The men came to work at Sciotoville about a week ago, coming from New York, where they worked on the Hell-Gate bridge, one of the biggest engineering feats in the world. The Indians are considered one of the best riveting gangs in the country.

The wives of the men have been sent for and they will arrive early next week from their homes in Hoganburg, N. Y., near Buffalo.

The construction company has several other Indians on the job, who are considered among the best structural steel workers in this section of the country.

The Ohio Valley Bank! "Who'll Be There"

To gaze into the future and see why those of our people who save will have an advantage during the period of reconstruction following in the wake of European hostile cessation doesn't require any superhuman knowledge or foresight.

Naturally, economic conditions, have caused an unprecedented wave of prosperity to sweep over the land within the past two years, but it is in no sense to be compared to the avenues of profit and progress that will be opened up after peace has finally been restored.

And now, with new opportunities stretching out before you, new trophies lying in your path, you should prepare to take advantage of and "be there" to participate in them.

A few more dollars added to what you may now have is a step in the right direction. An account on interest is the beacon light. Start now at THE OHIO VALLEY BANK and be among those "who will be there."

A CASE IN POINT
We would point to the course of the city in regard to land wanted by the new Portsmouth Solvay Company as indicating that this big sister entertains only the kindest feeling for her little sister, New Boston, and does not hesitate in action that will be to the benefit of the latter.

Portsmouth owns a couple of acres to the east of New Boston that is desired by the Solvay Company for the extension of its plant, now under process of erection. Without haggling or delay the city resolves to take such steps as it legally can to place the land in the possession of the company. Further than that, it is an admirable spirit, determines that there shall be no "hold up", nor attempt thereof, and the price of the parcel is fixed at what was paid for it some three or four years ago, though it is undeniably worth considerably more today. Especially is this resolve commendable at a time when there is a seeming disposition in other quarters to hold up the city for private gain. Let us, however, get back to this matter in so far as it affects New Boston. It shows the city has no desire to block the progress and growth of the village, and though it may be the latter may say she does not desire to be annexed, still is the good will such that they will help and not hinder the development and growth of New Boston. The city knows the growth of New Boston will benefit the whole county and therefore it too, but, at the same time, it also believes the county would be immeasurably bettered by the consolidation of the two and likewise New Boston, which is a part of the county.

THE VILLAGE MUST ACT

A progressive resident of one of the villages and a man prominent in the industrial life of the county, writes us a communication, in which he calls our attention to the fact that a fine stretch of brick road, extending from near Lucasville to beyond Wheelersburg is marred, if not spoiled, by a street of a 100 yards of dirt road, passing under the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern bridge at Sciotoville. There is anxiety on his part to have this gap improved and also curiosity to know by what corporate body action should be taken there towards. There will be no disagreement with him as to the desirability of the improvement. It is disagreeable, if not disgraceful, that it has been so long delayed. As we understand the original cause that it has been so long delayed, we can understand the original cause that it has been so long delayed. As we understand the original cause that it has been so long delayed, we can understand the original cause that it has been so long delayed.

We must confess our friend has got us puzzled when he asks, if the general understanding that the road which the county paved through Sciotoville, before it was incorporated, is still a state road and the state obligated to keep up repairs thereon is correct. So far as we know this is the first condition of the kind presented since the state went into partnership with the county in the construction of permanent highways and obligated itself to maintain all such after they were once improved and there has been no specific ruling on the particular phase we find here presented. We are, however, of the definite opinion, that when the village became incorporated and took over the streets, the paved one included, that automatically annulled the obligation of maintenance on the part of the state that it had assumed with the county.

SOME FACTS AND FIGURES

The claim has been frequently and persistently made that when the last board of county commissioners, with members of both major parties went out of existence, it left all the funds depleted and overdrawn. That the exact conditions may be known and understood, and without any argument or discussion as to a controversy that has now gone on for over a year, the official figures, figures and facts taken from the county records, are herewith submitted, in comparison with conditions when the old board began business in 1911, the figures for 1915 being the stated condition of the funds as the old board left them. Here are the official figures:

1911 Funds	1915 Funds
Road, overdrawn ... $ 4,031.32	Road, overdrawn ... $ 843.73
Turnpike, overdrawn 11,646.32	Turnpike, balance ... 29,583.18
Bridge, overdrawn ... 3,281.36	Bridge, balance ... 13,493.87
Building, balance ... 2,906.04	Building, balance ... 6,556.31

At its organization, or first session in 1911, the old board allowed vouchers, issued by its predecessor to the amount of $19,371.11; at its organization, or first session in 1915, the board allowed vouchers of $2,255.19.

When the old board came into existence it found existing obligations against the building fund of $8,000. It reduced these obligations against the building fund of $8,000. It reduced these obligations against the building fund of $8,000. It reduced these obligations against the building fund of $8,000.

If one may take their scant presence at party speakings as a criterion, Portsmouth women have scant interest in politics.

So far as we could see it Democrats appeared just about as much surprised as they were elated, at their rousing meeting, Thursday night. We can't see why either. They have always been good at turning out and it is seldom any party has to offer two such speakers as Messrs. Daugherty and Duffy. The former's fame is long and widely established and Duffy is going to grow into one of the acknowledged big men of the state. You can't stop a brood of a boy, who comes out of the factory and begins climbing upward like he has.

To Effect Organization

All members of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' Union are urged to meet in called session tonight, at seven o'clock, at the Labor House, 1000 Main Street, either Mr. Schmidt or Mr. Ollander, National Organizer, will be present to organize the new local composed of 10 members.

NEW-YORK-DAY-BY-DAY.
O.O. MEINTYRE.
New York, Nov. 4.—The time elapsing during their short stay here of year is here when the sight of Picoul and Bielka are white Sabre limbs of the leafless trees shock the shock absorbers who go about looking for shocks to absorb. Every cornfield is now good for a flock of shocks. Even the legs of the park benches are un— one might say—adorned. So let us all join the latest purity crusade: "Skirts for men."
Remember it is skirt—not shirt. It seems that the idea started in New Orleans when some organization urged that men should wear skirts with their bathing suits. It was taken up by reformers who live along the beaches in New York and they are urging that all men bathers wear skirts next season.
Boy page "September Morn!" The idea is that skirts for men will cover a multitude of sins. (We must have our little quip.) Already the skirt-advocates have a big list of followers and the matter is to be put up to the governing bodies of the ocean villages.
Once the men are backed into bathing skirts, caps and hosiery, it will be only a couple of steps to the full outfit, with high heeled slippers, parasol, corsets and bracelets.
As skirts usually end in a hem and as the subject is one best passed over like that—
Very well then,
A-hem.
The Winter Garden has issued an order barring girls with gold teeth from the chorus of the shows there. It is argued that gold in the mouth is considered loud. However, there are not many in New York who pay any special attention to the mouth of a chorus girl. There are other things to be considered.
Picoul and his mother Bielka, from Siberia, have found American far from the glorious land of liberty that it has been proclaimed.

SIXTY MEN TRAPPED IN MINE

Only One Survivor Reported

London, November 4.—The London and North-western Railway steamship Connemara, bound from Greenore to Holyhead, with passengers, collided with another vessel and it is feared the death toll is about 300. The Connemara collided with the steamship Retriever in the Irish channel last night. Both vessels were sunk. So far as is known there is only one survivor from both vessels.

The railway company says it is unable to state whether any American were aboard these vessels. They seldom carry saloon passengers.

GERMAN PRESS SHOWS INTEREST IN AMERICAN ELECTION

Berlin, Nov. 3. (Via London).—The German press shows considerable interest in the approaching American election, printing all available news arriving by way of Holland or reprinting summaries of the situation from English newspapers. The Catholic Organ, Die Katholische Volkszeitung, today devoted a lengthy editorial to the subject but studiously avoided taking sides. If the German people at one time, it says, fanned one of the candidates because they

EXPENSIVE ARTICLES IN DEMAND

New York, Nov. 4.—Despite high prices there is a notable preference among women shoppers here for the more expensive merchandise, according to a canvass of the principal department stores of New York City, made by a trade paper. It was also developed that the retailers are doing unusually large business for this season of the year.

NATIONAL CAMPAIGN WILL BE VIRTUALLY CLOSED TONIGHT

New York, Nov. 4.—Candidates for the presidency and prominent campaign orators in general will make their last spoken appeals for votes today. Some time around midnight, when the last cheer has died away, the last red fire has been burned out and the last parader has gone home, the national campaign will be virtually over.

Charles E. Hughes ended his political travels yesterday, but the last day of his campaign is one of the hardest. He makes five speeches here this afternoon and will deliver his final address at a rally in Madison Square Garden, which will close the greatest Republican rally of the campaign in New York City.

President Wilson at Long Branch will make his last speech before an audience from his home state. Every Democratic county organization in New Jersey will send delegates to Shadow Lawn.

Both candidates will spend the two days that intervene before election quietly, the president at Shadow Lawn and Mr. Hughes at the hotel, where he has made his New York headquarters since he left Washington. They will receive the returns at these places.

J. Frank Hanly, the Prohibition presidential candidate, will reach his home in Indianapolis tonight, after a final day of speech-making through Indiana. Since September 8 Mr. Hanly has travelled nearly 20,000 miles through 24 states.

The Socialist candidate, Allan L. Benson, who has made campaign speeches in almost every part of the country, is today in Kansas City, Mo.

Mr. Hughes, the Republican candidate, holds the record for campaign journeys. When he reached New York yesterday he had made four distinct trips, which since August have carried him through thirty-three states and a distance of about 28,000 miles. None of the president's trips were as long as those of his rival and most of them were made to some specific point for the purpose of delivering one principal address.

President Wilson's campaign has had the assistance of his cabinet members and of Vice President Marshall, while Mr. Hughes enjoyed the unique distinction of having speeches made for him by two former occupants of the White House, William H. Taft and Theodore Roosevelt. Colonel Roosevelt made his last speech here last night.

The increased number of states where women may vote for president this year has given women a greater part in this campaign than ever before. The most extensive campaign trip ever undertaken by feminine presidential workers ended here last night when a special train brought back the women, who have been traveling through the country to win votes for Mr. Hughes. They have journeyed 11,700 miles and addressed 191 meetings in twenty-eight states.

SUBMARINE U-57 MAY ESCORT THE DEUTSCHLAND HOME

New London, Nov. 4.—The German armored submarine U-57, sister ship of the U-52, which recently sank five vessels off the New England coast is expected to act as convoy for the under-sea freighter, Deutschland, on her return trip to Germany, according to a statement made by Captain Paul Koenig.

The Deutschland's skipper added: "I would not be surprised if the armored submarine appeared off this coast while I am in port. You can't tell what the government will do."

In answer to questions, Captain Koenig said he probably would make his homeward dash within the next ten days.

AUSTRO-GERMAN FORCES FACE STIFF RESISTANCE IN EFFORT TO INVADE RUMANIA

London, Nov. 4.—Violent fighting continues to mark the Austro-German attempts to open a way to the plains of Rumania south of Kronstadt, and Hermannstadt and toward Bucharest. The stiff defense of the Rumanians is yielding slowly to the blows of Austro-German artillery and infantry about Predel and Berlin announces further progress south of the border for them.

East of Predel the Rumanians advancing in the Buzen valley have driven the invaders back over the frontier in the region of Table Butzi. They also have taken Mount Striel and Taturunio along the Transylvanian border southeast of Kronstadt. South of Hermannstadt in the region of Rothenthurm Pass the Austro-Germans have extended their lines and captured an additional 350 prisoners. West of Rothenthurm and in the Prachova valley the Rumanians are holding their ground.

On the eastern front fighting has taken place east of Kovel, in Volhynia and southeast of Lemberg in Galicia. Berlin announces the repulse of seven Russian attacks against the Austro-German positions on the left bank of Naruvka river near Halicz in Galicia while Petrograd says the Russians have re-occupied part of their trenches on the west bank of the Stokhod in the region of Kiselini, in Volhynia. Near Lipniadolina, in Galicia, the Russians have pushed back the Austro-Germans in some places.

GERMAN SHIPS NOT DRIVEN OFF IN RAID SAYS OFFICIAL REPORT

Berlin, Nov. 3.—Wireless to Sayville.—The Admiralty has made the following announcement: "It is once more stated that all the German torpedo boats which partook in the enterprise in the English channel on the night of October 26-27, returned. No boat was damaged by shells or mines."

"As to the English patrol boats sunk by German torpedo boats, the British Minister Balfour (first lord of the admiralty) admitted that the number was six. The official British report issued previously mentioned none. The German report gave their number as eleven, which, according to a new and careful investigation, must be considered as very conservative."

"The German torpedo boats were by no means driven away by the British for there were present no British forces that could have done this. The few British destroyers, which showed themselves, were in part sunk by shots, being so taken by surprise that they could not fire one shot, while the remainder saved themselves by flight."

BIG GUNS ACTIVE ON THE WEST FRONT

Paris, Nov. 4.—There was intermittent cannonading along the Somme and in the region of Fort Vaux and Fort Douaumont north of Verdun last night the war office announced today. Elsewhere conditions were quiet.

Vienna.—(Via London).—Nov. 4.—The Austro-Hungarian press which a week ago paid no attention to the American presidential campaign has discussed the subject during the last few days as thoroughly as the fragmentary reports reaching Vienna will permit. Generally the papers express the opinion that the result of the presidential election will have no influence upon the war.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 4.—Cabbage prices are so high at present that many makers of sauer kraut in Western Pennsylvania declare their intention of curtailing production until values come down. One Pittsburgh manufacturer announces he will raise the price of all kraut in stock $5 a cask and make no more for the present.

Washington, Penna., Nov. 4.—The Rev. Dr. James David Moffat, president emeritus of Washington and Jefferson College for thirty-three years, died here today after an illness of less than a week from paralysis. Dr. Moffat was moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in 1905, was born at New Lisbon, O., March 15, 1846. He was a firm believer in church unity and was largely instrumental in bringing about the union of the Presbyterian and Cumberland Presbyterian churches.

RESCUERS ARE RUSHED TO THE SCENE

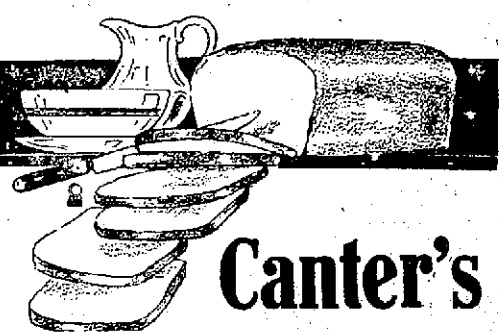

BULLETIN

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 4.—More than sixty men are entombed in the Bessie mine this morning as the result of an explosion about four o'clock. The mines are twenty miles west of this city.

Later reports say sixty or more men are entombed in the Bessie mines of the Sloss Sheffield Steel and Iron Company, as the result early today of an explosion. More than half are said to be white men. Officials believe the blast was caused by gas. The entire force of state rescue workers under C. S. Nesbitt, chief mine inspector, together with a crew from the United States Mine Bureau, were summoned to the scene shortly after the explosion and everything possible, it is said, is being done to reach the entombed men. Following the explosion frantic relatives of the entombed men crowded the opening.

Ohio State Is Ready For Whistle; Play Wisconsin Today

Many Important Games On Today's Schedule

Columbus, Nov. 4.—The Ohio State University football eleven today meets the Wisconsin University eleven on Ohio field, in a contest which will decide whether the Buckeyes can retain their unexpected grip on Western conference honors. The Badgers have been in camp here for 24 hours rest after the railroad trip, and both teams are in excellent condition.

Ohio's sudden development into a factor in the Big Nine race has stimulated interest in the contest today and the game will be attended to a gala celebration and demonstration. Special trains are to be run from Cincinnati, Cleveland and other cities, and advance ticket sale indicate that the attendance will be more than 15,000. Following is the probable lineup:

Big Elevens Clash Today

Nov. 4.—Close scores are expected today in at least two of the Eastern college football games—Yale vs. Colgate at New Haven and the Army against Notre Dame at West Point. Last year the New York State team defeated Yale 13 to 0. Neither team has met defeat this season.

Notre Dame has to her credit a score of 182 points in four games without score against her and is rated fully as strong as last year. The Army, however, has proved itself a formidable aggregation this season.

Lafayette In Philly

Philadelphia, Nov. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania and Lafayette met today in their annual gridiron contest. Supporters of the Red and Blue eleven were confident that their favorites would experience but little difficulty in wiping out last year's defeat at the hands of Lafayette.

Saturday's Schedule

Here is the complete schedule of the college games booked for Ohio today not including the Otterbein-Marshall game, which will be played at Huntington, W. Va.:

Game In Millbrook

Sunday afternoon the fast Shamrock team will play at Millbrook having as their opponents the heavy New Boston Tiger eleven.

Will Play First Base

After nineteen years as a shortstop, Hans Wagner is to be transferred to first base next spring. Hans ought to have had sense enough to know, when he first took up shortstop, that the job wouldn't last.

Yale Plays Colgate

New Haven, Nov. 4.—A hard, close game with the odds in favor of the Blue was the general prediction for the annual football game between Yale and Colgate here this afternoon. Neither team has been defeated this season.

FIRST GAME SUNDAY

Manager Henry Hensge requests all members of the Herald football eleven to be on hand at Tracy park Sunday morning at nine o'clock. The team will adjourn from Tracy park to the Sixteenth street field where a short practice will be held. The eleven held its first practice Friday evening and the boys did well for the first time out this season. The team will play its first game Sunday afternoon on Rosemont Road with the Jesuit Mount Road Country Cousins.

Army Meets Noire Dame

West Point, Nov. 4.—The Army faces Notre Dame today in what the followers of West Point football look upon as the first real test of the season for their eleven men and the Tigers. The team from Indiana is anxious to repeat its victory of last year and is said to be the best which has represented Notre Dame in many seasons. The rivals will have all their first string men in at the kickoff and look to triumph to carry them through.

Four Teams Undefeated

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 4.—With the starting today of the November drive for the football championship of the south, two contests expected to result in cutting down the list of contenders for the 1916 title were down for decision. Georgia met Auburn at Columbus, Georgia while Alabama and Sewanee clashed at Birmingham. These four elevens up to today had not met defeat.

EASY GAME

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 4.—Coach Houghton felt so little fear of the University of Virginia eleven which came to the stadium today that he planned to send in an entire substitute backfield for Harvard. Several second string men also were expected to start in the Harvard line.

W. of U. At Michigan

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 4.—Outweighed all the way around by its opponent, the football eleven of Washington University of St. Louis opposes the University of Michigan here this afternoon. The visitors were expected to depend largely upon the forward pass for their gains. Michigan planned to start virtually the same lineup as that used against Syracuse last Saturday.

Navy Plays W. And L.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 4.—With a lineup slightly changed from that which met Georgia last Saturday, the Navy will meet Washington and Lee here this afternoon. In preparation for the struggle the Midies have been doing some stiff work this week.

Players Want McGraw Deposed As Manager

New York, Nov. 4.—Harry Hempstead, president of the New York Giants, will be forced to choose between John McGraw, his manager, and several of his star players before the Giants start on their spring training trip, according to inside information which has leaked out here.

Four of the players, according to the story as it stands now, will refuse to sign contracts for the coming season if McGraw is retained as manager.

Offer Is Declined

Cleveland, Nov. 4.—The Cleveland club of the American league has declined the invitation of the Chamber of Commerce of Natchez, Miss., to establish a spring training camp there. Natchez offered to build a club house for the players and promised every other convenience, but Robert McRoy, vice president of the club, said that the club was under contract to train at New Orleans until 1918.

Tris Is Wise Old Gink

"I wouldn't manage a ball club for all the money there is in the world," declared Tris Speaker, who added: "I don't know where the rumor started that I was to succeed Lou Gehrig here in Cleveland, but take it from me there is nothing to it. I expect to play some years to come, but never will I manage a club."

A SEARCHLIGHT ON Hughes and Wilson Strength

—IN—

New York—Illinois—Indiana—Ohio—New Jersey

If we can catch the voters in the glare of the searchlight as they are shifting from one political camp to another, and count them, we can tell which camp will be found to have the heaviest battalions next Tuesday. So we have shot a ray of light at five big "doubtful" States where the paths from camp to camp are crowded with marchers, coming and going, and have made a count of those caught by its momentary gleam.

The Editors of THE LITERARY DIGEST wrote to 50,000 "Digest" subscribers in the States of New York, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, and New Jersey. They were asked to name the candidates they voted for in 1912 and for whom they would vote next Tuesday. More than 30,000 have responded.

In THE LITERARY DIGEST for November 4th the result of this canvass is shown. Several significant phases are apparent, and the article teems with interest.

A CASE IN POINT

We would point to the course of the city in regard to land wanted by the new Portsmouth Solvay Company as indicating that this big sister entertains only the kindest feeling for her little sister, New Boston, and does not hesitate in action that will be to the benefit of the latter.

Portsmouth owns a couple of acres to the east of New Boston that is desired by the Solvay Company for the extension of its plant, now under process of erection. Without haggling or delay the city resolves to take such steps as it legally can to place the land in the possession of the company. Further than that it in admirable spirit, determines that there shall be no "hold up", nor attempt thereat, and the price of the parcel is fixed at what was paid for it some three or four years ago, though it is undeniably worth considerably more today. Especially is this resolve commendable at a time when there is a seeming disposition in other quarters to hold up the city for private gain. Let us, however, get back to this matter in so far as it affects New Boston. It shows the city has no desire to block the progress and growth of the village and though it may be the latter may say she does not desire to be annexed, still is the good will such that they will help and not hinder the development and growth of New Boston. The city knows the growth of New Boston will benefit the whole county and therefore it too, but, at the same time, it also believes the county would be immeasurably bettered by the consolidation of the two and likewise New Boston, which is a part of the county.

THE VILLAGE MUST ACT

A progressive resident of one of the villages and a man prominent in the industrial life of the county, writes as a communication, in which he calls our attention to the fact that a fine stretch of brick road, extending from near Lucasville to beyond Wheelersburg is marred, if not spoiled, by a street of a 100 yards of dirt road, passing under the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern bridge at Sciotoville. There is anxiety on his part to have this gap improved and also earnestly to know by what corporate body action should be taken there towards. There will be no disagreement with him as to the desirability of the improvement. It is disgraceful, if not disgraceful, that it has been so long delayed. As we understand the original cause of not including the 100 yards in the first laying of a brick road to the east was in failure to reach a timely agreement with the railroad company on changes in the bridge that were thought proper and necessary to carry the highway on the course and grade it should have. Since the paving was done through Sciotoville that place has been incorporated and that out takes the particular piece of road out of the jurisdiction of the county commissioners, as it is inside the corporate lines, converts it to a street, under the control of the village. In this situation the village will have to pave the gap, if it ever is.

We must confess our friend has got us puzzled when he asks, if the general understanding that the road which the county paved through Sciotoville, before it was incorporated, is still a state road and the state obligated to keep up repairs thereon is correct. So far as we know this is the first condition of the kind presented since the state went into partnership with the county in the construction of permanent highways and obligated itself to maintain all such after they were once improved and there has been no specific ruling on the particular phase we find here presented. We are, however, of the definite opinion, that when the village became incorporated and took over the streets, the paved one included, that automatically annulled the obligation of maintenance on the part of the state that it had assumed with the county.

SOME FACTS AND FIGURES

The claim has been frequently and persistently made that when the last board of county commissioners, with members of both major parties went out of existence, it left all the funds depleted and overdrawn. That the exact conditions may be known and understood, and without any argument or discussion as to a controversy that has now gone on for over a year, the official figures, figures and facts taken from the county records, are herewith submitted, in comparison with conditions when the old board began business in 1911, the figures for 1915 being the stated condition of the funds as the old board left them. Here are the official figures:

1911 Funds	1915 Funds
Road, overdrawn ... $ 4,031.32	Road, overdrawn ... $ 843.73
Turnpike, overdrawn 11,646.32	Turnpike, balance ... 29,583.18
Bridge, overdrawn ... 3,281.36	Bridge, balance ... 13,433.87
Building, balance ... 2,906.04	Building, balance ... 6,556.31

At its organization, or first session in 1911, the old board allowed vouchers, issued by its predecessor to the amount of $19,374.11; at its organization, or first session in 1915, the board allowed vouchers of $8,256.19.

When the old board came into existence it found existing obligations against the building fund of $8,000. It reduced these obligations against the building fund of $8,000. It reduced these obligations against the building fund when it retired. In addition it found outstanding claims of $8,000 against the bridge fund. It paid and left a balance of $13,433.87 behind.

If one may take their scant presence at party speakings as a criterion, Portsmouth women have scant interest in politics.

CAN THEY FLOAT 'EM OVER?

So far as we could see it Democrats appeared just about as much surprised as they were elated, at their rousing meeting, Thursday night. We can't see why either. They have always been good at turning out and it is seldom any party has to offer two such speakers as Messrs. Daugherty and Duffy. The former's fame is long and widely established and Duffy is going to grow into one of the acknowledged big men of the state. You can't stop a brood of boys, who come out of the factory and begin climbing upward like he has.

NEW-YORK-DAY-BY-DAY.

O. O. MCINTYRE.

New York, Nov. 4.—The time of year is here when the sight of bare limbs of the leafless trees shock the shock absorbers who go about looking for shocks to absorb. Every cornfield is now good for a flock of shocks. Even the legs of the park benches are unadorned. So let us all join the latest purity crusade: "Skirts for men."

Remember it is skirt—not shirt. It seems that the idea started in New Orleans when some organization urged that men should wear skirts with their bathing suits. It was taken up by reformers who live along the beaches in New York and they are urging that all men bathers wear skirts next season.

Boy page "September Morn" The idea is that skirts for men will cover a multitude of shins. (We must have our little quip.) Already the skirt advocates have a big list of followers and the matter is to be put up to the governing bodies of the ocean villages.

Once the men are backed into bathing skirts, caps and hose, it will be only a couple of steps to the full outfit, with high heeled slippers, parasol, corsets and bracelets.

As skirts usually end in a hem, and as the subject is one best passed over like that—
Very well then;
A-hem.

The Winter Garden has issued an order barring girls with gold teeth from the chorus of the shows there. It is argued that gold in the mouth is considered loud. However, there are not many in New York who pay any special attention to the mouth of a chorus girl. There are other things to be considered.

Picoul and his mother Bielka, from Siberia, have found America far from the glorious land of liberty that it has been proclaimed during their short stay here. Picoul and Bielka are white Sannoid sledge dogs and are owned by Prince Paul Troubetzkoy, the sculptor.

The prince was coming out of the main entrance of the Majestic with his dogs when a policeman passing, stopped and looked at the dogs. Then he handed a slip of paper to the prince.

"What does this?" asked Prince Paul.

"That is a little invitation for you to visit a place where they won't serve vodka or eat Caviar?"

In court the prince paid a $1 fine, but he left declaring that his dogs would never be muzzled. He thinks it is a torture that would not be inflicted in Siberia.

Down on the Bowery an odd Chinese character has been found. He conducts a laundry there. He came to New York from San Francisco immediately after landing in America. That was 18 years ago. He brought out his father who owned the laundry and has never been outside of the two rooms he occupies since the purchase.

He has never been in the subway, on the elevated or seen any of New York except that portion that might be seen through his dirty windows. He does all his own work and claims that he has never been ill a single day. Fresh air is something he has not known in all this time.

His English was picked up by customers. One young boy made special efforts to help him at the start. The other day he sent word to the boy—now a man of family—that he wanted to see him. "I no forget you," he said.

"You take all same greenbacks." It was a roll of bills that totaled $1000. It is said he has a huge fortune buried about his place and the police have frequently warned him to bank the money.

The Swatting Maid
There was a maid in our town
And she was wondrous fine
She jumped into the dining-room
And swatted all the flies.

And when the dining-room was cleaned
Of flies, she got to itching
To swat some more, and so she killed
All that were in the kitchen.

And when she cleaned the kitchen up
She felt quite acrobatic
And with a mop she went atop
To swat 'em in the attic.

And when she had the attic clear,
No one did have to tell her
That she should finish up the job
And swat 'em in the cellar.

And when she'd swatted every one
And worked with might and main,
The screen door was left open, and
The house was full again.

MEN WHO FELL 110 FEET DOING WELL AT HOSPITAL

Peter Oakes, Thomas Sharkey and Frank Sharrow, the three Indians who fell 110 feet into the Ohio river while working for the McClintic-Marshall Company on the C. & O. Northern bridge at Sciotoville Friday afternoon about two o'clock, spent a very good night at Hempstead hospital.

The trio, along with Thomas Logwood, formed a riveting gang, but Logwood, at the time of the accident, happened to be on another part of the work and did not share the fate of his fellow workers. Oakes, Sharkey and Sharrow were on a scaffold three-quarters of the distance from the bank to the middle river pier. A 4-inch by 8-inch support, known as a "needle beam," broke and let the plank on which the men were standing, fall. They fell into four feet of water, the river being unusually low at this time.

A cry of alarm was given as the men fell and in a few seconds a number of fellow workers were busy in the water helping the men ashore. Bob Fisher, blacksmith, waded out and caught Sharkey, who had his arms clasped around a piece of the broken timber and was floating down stream. Oakes and Sharrow were brought ashore in the McClintic-Marshall Company launch.

Dr. J. F. York, the company physician, was called and he summoned Daehler's ambulance, who removed Oakes and Sharkey to the hospital. Sharrow was taken to the hospital in Dr. York's machine. At the hospital Dr. York assisted by Dr. W. W. Smith, made a hurried examination of the men's injuries. Oakes and Sharrow were more seriously injured than Sharkey, who suffered only a sprained neck. He will be out in a few days. Oakes had three ribs broken. One rib is pressing against the lung and an operation will probably be necessary. Sharrow had his right arm broken, right ankle sprained, and sustained numerous lacerations and bruises about the head and face. His head must have struck a timber in the fall or the rock bottom of the river, as his head is badly swollen. It will be several days before he will be able to open his eyes.

The men came to work at Sciotoville about a week ago, coming from New York, where they worked on the Hell-Gate bridge, one of the biggest engineering feats in the world. The Indians are considered one of the best riveting gangs in the country.

The wives of the men have been sent for and they will arrive early next week from their homes in Hogenburg, N. Y., near Buffalo. The construction company has several other Indians on the job, who are considered among the best structural steel workers in this section of the country.

Meet Me At Nye's Fountain, 12th

November 8, 1895, Male Babies May Vote At This Election

Is there any male person in Scioto county who was born on the 8th day of November, 1895, and, if so, will be entitled to vote at the election on November 7th, provided he is otherwise legally qualified? This question was asked J. F. Johnley, deputy clerk of the Board of Election, Friday. In answering, he held:

"The constitutional provision is that a male person must be of the age of twenty-one years to be entitled to vote.

"In calculating the age of persons, application must be made of the common law rule that no consideration will be given to a fraction of a day.

"Thus if by the application of this rule it is determined that a person will be twenty-one years of age at any moment of a particular day, such person will, in legal contemplation, be for all purposes twenty-one years old for and during the whole of that day.

"The weight of legal authority in this country is, that an infant attains twenty-one years of age on the first moment of the day next before the twenty-first anniversary of his birthday, and a male person who was born on the date above mentioned and who is otherwise legally qualified as an elector, will be entitled to vote at the election next Tuesday.

Your Last Chance to See "The Little Girl Next Door" at the Columbia Today

Few photoplays exhibited in this city have aroused more genuine enthusiasm than "The Little Girl Next Door," which was shown at the Columbia yesterday, and will be shown for the last time again today.

The plot is but an incident of every day life, an incident which does not always reach the ear of the public. An innocent little school girl, the pet and pride of the neighborhood, whose guileless attitude toward the world, is her potent enemy, is the center of the story. Her elopement, followed by her abduction by the agents of the white slavers, leads the spellbound audience through a series of thrilling incidents that are almost unbelievable.

Finally through the interest of a neighbor, a friend of the little girl next door, the matter of the lawlessness of the agents of the white slave people is brought to the attention of Governor Dunne, of Illinois, who appoints a Vice Commission to investigate the segregated districts. The results of their secret search is plainly told in the series of reels, which bares the souls of these unfortunate girls forced to lead a life of shame.

The play deals with facts, cold and stern, the red-tape workings of the ward politician, the splendid character of the District Attorney, a charming love story running all through the sordid play, which teaches a strong lesson of plain, every-day morality.

During the running of the picture, Miss Catherine Golden and Miss Beatrice Armstrong, two young ladies from the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, will sing several appropriate selections. Their singing yesterday was a real feature and highly praised.

MEETING WAS POSTPONED

The meeting which was to have been held at the J. W. Pressor home on Tiannonds avenue Friday evening for the purpose of organizing a poultry and pet stock association, was called off on account of the big Republican parade and rally. It is hoped to arrange for a big meeting some time next week.

Pleads Not Guilty To Stealing Hides; Mayor Gives Warning

Walter Forsythe was arraigned in the mayor's court Saturday morning on a charge of stealing hides from an N. & W. box car, to which he pleaded not guilty. He was $200 to the grand jury in the sum of $200. Judge A. Z. Blair at once secured his release on bond.

Homer Hammock, another East End young man, who was similarly charged, was released from custody by Mayor Kaps Saturday morning, as there was no evidence, he said, to connect him with the stealing. An older brother, John Hammock, was one of the five men bound over to the grand jury by the mayor since the stealing of the hides occurred.

Young Hammock was advised by the mayor to spread the word for him through the East End that any persons who appeared before the grand jury or in common pleas court and testified falsely regarding their knowledge of the hide-stealing would be arrested for perjury and by him bound over to the grand jury.

"GUN MEN" HELD TO GRAND JURY

Will Abbott and Joe Henderson, the two strangers, who, as they were about to be arrested near the Portsmouth Chemical works some days ago, dropped two new revolvers which have been identified as some of those stolen from the Rottinghaus hardware store recently, were bound over to the grand jury by Mayor Kaps Saturday, on charges of carrying concealed weapons. Their bonds were fixed at $200 each.

All efforts to get the two men to talk proved futile, they denying that the time they were taken into custody by Sergeant John Smith and Patrolman Jack Leeds, they are reported to have begged earnestly to be allowed to go, saying "You can take the guns, let us catch this freight train."

It was pointed out to the pair by police officials that they were not charging them with the hardware store robbery, or even suspecting how they came into possession of the guns and tried to clear themselves, no other alternative remained but to hold them.

Henderson is an awkward and unsophisticated young man, who claims Pikeville, Ky., as his home, but Abbott seems to impress the police as a rounded. He is smooth in speech and seems to exercise a certain influence over his companion. He claims to be from West Virginia. He tried to escape from the police the afternoon they were arrested.
